New Captive Mine Conference Fails To Reach Accord

Lewis and Steel Company Men To Resume Efforts For Peace Today

The Meeting Has Been Going on Very Nicely", Benjamin Fairless Reports after Session

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—At the bidding of President Roosevelt, representatives of major steel companies and the United Mine Workers resumed direct negotiations today on the issue of a union shop for captive coal mines, but reached no conclusions at their first sitting.

Pursuant to President Roosevelt's instructions we have been meeting, but no conclusions have been reached by the time the session ended yesterday, John L. Lewis, UMW head, as it, the conferees emerged from a hotel building.

"The meeting has been going on very nicely, very satisfactorily," said Benjamin Fairless, of United States Steel Corporation.

The negotiations will resume tomorrow, but the question whether 10,000 miners in the captive pits owned by steel companies will go on strike Monday, the working day after the expiration of the existing truce, was still up in the air.

If these negotiations fail to produce an agreement, Mr. Roosevelt asked that the dispute be submitted to an arbitrator, or arbiters, or anybody else with any other name, and that in the meantime coal production continue.

No Closed Shop
The president advanced his proposal at a thirty-minute White House conference at which he told both steel and union officials that the government "will not order, nor will Congress pass legislation ordering, a so-called closed shop."

He warned that no interruption to the fuel supplies of the steel mills could be tolerated because steel was urgently needed for national defense.

If legislation to prevent such an interruption should become necessary, Congress would approve it "without any question," he asserted, and then added:

"Because it is essential to national defense that the necessary coal production be continued and not stopped, it is therefore the indisputable obligation of the president to see that this is done."

Chinese See Hope Fading for Peace Between U. S., Japan

CHUNGKING, China, Saturday, Nov. 15 (AP)—Informed that unofficially in this Chinese capital early today viewed the withdrawal of U. S. marines from China as signifying that hope of averting war in the Pacific had grown very dim in Washington.

Even if there is no war, the withdrawal of the marines from Shanghai was regarded in Chungking as foreshadowing virtual Japanese military control over the international settlement.

"No marines; no Shanghai," one veteran observer said laconically.

Bodies of German Battle Dead Remain Near Tula, Moscow Says

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP)—Only the broken bodies of the German battle-dead remained tonight in the mine-sown outskirts of Tula, Russian military dispatches said, after fifteen consecutive waves of Nazi tanks had been smashed back in a two-week battle for this southern key to the defenses of Moscow.

This proud claim was broadcast by the Moscow radio to climax a series of military reports which depicted the Germans, on a true black Friday for Nazi arms, retreating in every sector of the Moscow front.

The Tula battle was won on the mine-sown southern approaches to the town, in the village of Rodezh-

Roosevelt Calls All Marines Out Of China Posts

Protection of American Interests Left to Asiatic Fleet

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—Swiftly following up his neutrality revision victory in the House, President Roosevelt announced today a decision to withdraw the token force of American marines in China, thus leaving the protection of American interests in that section of the world to the Asiatic fleet.

The disclosure, at the president's press conference, was made even as a special Japanese envoy arrived in this country for what appeared to be one more — and possibly the last — joint effort to discover a formula for peace in the Pacific.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to discuss the significance of the China move in respect to Japanese-American relations, but diplomatic observers generally attached as much importance to the timing of the announcement as to the decision itself.

970 Marines in China
There are only 970 marines in China. They are broken up into the Fourth Marines at Shanghai numbering 750; a Tientsin detachment of 55, and a Peiping detachment of 165. Those are all who remain of the thousands stationed in China at various times since 1854 when Commodore Perry took in the first group.

Why they were withdrawn Mr. Roosevelt did not say. Speculation centered on the fact that as a military force they were too few even to defend themselves should

Doris Stevens Flies to Miami To See Ray Keeling Dean

ARCADIA, Fla., Nov. 14 (AP)—A young British flight student, who hopes to become a pilot for the Royal Air Force, climaxed four years of romance by mail today when he met pretty, 20-year-old Doris Mae Stevens of Baltimore.

Ray Keeling Dean, 21, wore his blue-gray dress uniform of the RAF for the first time since he came here from Liverpool, England when he greeted Doris at Carlstrom field. They had never seen each other. They had kept up for four years a monthly correspondence, started when both were in high school. Doris left her job as stenographer for a chemical company in Baltimore to fly here for the weekend.

Dean was busy in classes when she arrived in Tampa earlier today, but a friend, Robert Fowler, drove her to Arcadia.

And Then They Meet

"I'm so glad to know you at last," she explained as Dean stepped forward to greet her, with hands outstretched.

"This is a big moment in my life," he replied, grasping her hands and holding onto them for several minutes.

For the benefit of photographers, the couple managed a modest hug and kiss. Young Dean needed no urging to gaze at Doris, a pretty brunette with dark hair and eyes and fair skin. Standing five feet, two inches, she was dressed in a blue wool turban and a blue crepe dress with light collar.

On Duty Today
Dean's duties at Riddle Aeronautical Institute here limited his schedule for the weekend. He got off for the afternoon, but had to be back on duty at 8:30 p. m. and he was ordered to training flights tomorrow morning and afternoon.

For Saturday night, he planned a trip with Doris and their friend, Fowler, to Sarasota, where they will meet Fowler's girl friend for dinner and a dance. Dean will devote most of Sunday to his visitor, but must be back on duty at 5:30 p. m.

Arrangements were made to fly Miss Stevens to Tampa, Monday

British Admiral Reports Partial Success of Ferry Lines to Africa

But Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham Declares Thousands of Men Are Being Killed at Sea

By LARRY ALLEN

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Nov. 14 (AP)—A large number of Axis troops still are getting across from Italy to Libya," Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, commander in chief of the British Mediterranean fleet, acknowledged today, but he added that most of these are reaching North Africa "with wet shirts."

Furthermore, he said British naval successes in the central Mediterranean had put a serious crimp in Nazi plans for an offensive in the western desert.

The smashing of Axis convoys, with the loss of thousands of Axis soldiers and large quantities of war supplies, is "certainly delaying if not preventing" any Axis drive toward the Nile, the admiral declared in an interview aboard his flagship.

Fresh Troops Needed

The Germans and Italians are in sore need of fresh troops and equipment, he said, and despite the success of British warships, submarines and aircraft in blasting Libya-bound convoys, many Axis troops are reaching Africa to fill this need.

Commenting on Tangier dispatches that the bodies of 7,000 Italians had been washed ashore in Tunisia, Sir Andrew said that these apparently were seamen and soldiers from ships sunk along the Tunisian coast, and that the figure would not cover those lost in the Central Mediterranean.

The loss of life probably has been heaviest, the admiral said, aboard Italian warships, because escorting most of the crews of supply ships. In recent weeks three large transport liners and four smaller transports have been sunk.

German Vessels Attacked

In praising the work of British cruisers and destroyers which sank three Italian destroyers and ten supply ships off Taranto, Italy, last Sunday, Sir Andrew said available reports indicated that at least two of the large convoyed vessels flew the swastika.

Questioned about reports that Adolf Hitler was bringing pressure on Premier Mussolini to send warships to the Black Sea to support the German drive in the Crimea, the commander said that he did not think Germany could assume real control of the Italian war fleet because of a lack of trained personnel. Nevertheless, he said, large numbers of Nazi seamen now are attempting to sail supply ships to Libya.

Of the revision of the U. S. neutrality act, Sir Andrew said: "This action will lighten our burdens, because American ships entering belligerent waters will be better able to look after themselves. We have not been conveying any American ships, but we have protected them along with other ships when in war zone harbors."

Japan Plans Big Increase in Army And Expenditures

Drastic Revision of Conscription Regulations Probable

TOKYO, Nov. 14 (AP)—Japan dug deeply today into her reserves of men and money for war on the eve of a special session of Parliament marking one of her sharpest crises in modern times.

The cabinet approved for submission tomorrow at the opening of the special session an extraordinary war fund of 3,800,000,000 yen (nominally $874,000,000) and a general account appropriation of 510,000,000 yen ($117,300,000).

The war office announced a drastic revision of conscription regulations, rendering scores of thousands of hitherto exempt men liable to early summons to the colors.

Men of the last ten military classes, twenty to thirty years old, who had been exempted because of physical condition will be called for re-examination and possible induction.

Certain reserve officers and non-commissioned officers also were made more readily available for duty, including officers up to fifty-one and noncoms to forty-one.

As new emergency financing, the cabinet has already prepared a tax program which would increase and in some cases double indirect taxes on so-called luxuries.

In all, the government is expected to submit thirteen measures to Parliament, including the already operating postal censorship and the military service revision, as well as four direct budget increases which will carry the total expenditure on the China campaign to 26,209,760,000 yen ($6,028,000,000).

Plan Other Legislation

Still other legislation has been forecast to step up miscellaneous preparations for air raid defense.

General Hideki Tojo will address the Parliament on Sunday as premier. Pointing up the "crisis session" is the prospective re-opening of Washington negotiations through a special envoy, Saburo Kurosui, due to reach Washington this week-end.

Another factor in the crisis is the dispute between Japan and Russia over the sinking of the Japanese liner Keshi Maru in the sea of Japan on Nov. 5, attributed by Japanese to collision with a mine barge away from the Vladivostok fields.

FIRE BREAKS OUT IN DEFENSE PLANT AFTER PREVIEW TO PRESS

World's Largest Blackout Building Escapes Destruction When Warehouse Is Destroyed

PASTOR MAY APE HESS TO BRING CHRISTMAS PEACE

Rev. Benney Benson Plans To Parachute Down and See Hitler

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—For Christmas this year, the Rev. Benney Benson of Brooklyn says he hopes to give the world a negotiated peace — even if he must take a plane and "re-enact what Hess did."

"As a blessing and not as a curse," he said he would go to Germany and personally lay before Hitler his self-devised five-point plan for peace, which he said he believed had a fifty-fifty chance for success.

All that detained the pastor of the Kent Street Reformed Church from embarking in his mission, he said, was the word "go" from President Roosevelt or the state department. Both, he said, knew of his intentions.

Even if he received no official word, he declared, he would see Hitler in time to hand the world a "most sublime Christmas present."

Once Toured Germany

Dr. Benson, who said he once toured Germany on a bicycle and was arrested there as a suspected spy during the World War, predicted that he would have little difficulty reaching Hitler once he was in Germany.

If he failed to obtain a German passport, he said, he would get to Europe somehow, take a plane, fly to Berlin and parachute down.

"I will gladly re-enact what Hess did if necessary," he said. "My life is at stake and I am willing to give it. This is no stunt. It is a matter of trying out the teachings of Christ which governments have never done."

Sure He'll See Hitler

If he were seized on his arrival at Berlin, he said, he would show his credentials "and talk frankly and, I am thoroughly confident, I will get to see Hitler."

To Hitler, he said, he would propose:

1. Immediate cessation of hostilities without permanent recognition of military conquests.

2. The Golden Rule as an acting basis for peace.

PORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 14 (AP)—Fire which broke out shortly after the army gave newsmen a preview today of the world's largest blackout defense plant — a factory for the assembly of twenty-nine-ton bombers — destroyed a warehouse at the site and caused damage estimated at from $20,000 to $100,000.

The 200 by 50-foot warehouse west of the main building in which four-engine bombers will be put together by the Ford Motor Company, was used for the fabrication of air-conditioning equipment. It also contained sheet metal and plumbing supplies.

Albert S. Low, vice president of the Austin Company which is building the plant for the war department, said damage might reach $100,000.

Progress Delayed

Progress of work at the plant will be slowed temporarily, he added.

The consolidated bombers to be assembled here are of the type the British call the "Liberator."

Newsmen admitted to a preview had to pass through three lines of guards straddling a high speed dead-end highway leading from Port Worth.

Costing $25,000,000, the factory is 4,000 feet long and 320 feet wide. Last April 21, the 1,400-acre area on which the plant proper and the adjacent airport are situated was nothing but open field, woods and private homes.

World's Largest Room

The interior of the main building, engineers said, contains the world's largest room, measuring twelve city blocks long by a half block wide without a supporting column to obstruct the long assembly lines.

This plant, which will be in operation by next July, is one of seven to be devoted to the fabrication and final assembly of four engine planes under the 500 bombers-a-month program. Others are in Tulsa, Willowrun, Mich., Wichita, Kas., Seattle, San Diego, Long Beach and Burbank, Calif.

Port Worth will be blacked out defense plant for only a few months.

Famous British Plane Carrier Fails in Effort To Reach Shore

First Death List Placed at 32, but May Reach 100; Between 60 and 200 Reported Injured

LONDON, Saturday, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Ark Royal sank only twenty-five miles from Gibraltar after the mortally wounded aircraft carrier made a gallant but futile attempt to reach the big rock, a Reuters correspondent who was aboard related today.

For twelve hours the behemoth of the seas struggled toward port with a gaping torpedo hole in her slanting side, the correspondent said.

"But at 4:30 a. m. yesterday the captain sadly realized his ship could not be saved and gave the order to abandon ship," he wrote. "Two hours later the majestic Ark Royal plunged to her grave."

Senior officers who remained aboard after the initial "abandon ship" called back the engine room staff in an effort to drive her to port.

An officer aboard a destroyer which stood by to the end said:

"Just before she sank she had a thirty-five-degree list to the starboard. We realized she was finished. She toppled over like a tired child; her stern reared up for a moment, then gently slid beneath the waves."

She was attacked yesterday east of Gibraltar by a submarine—most likely by an Italian submarine although this point was not officially made—while she was en route to that Western Mediterranean fortress. She sank this morning under tow en route to port while some of her 1,600 men were working to the last, in the best of her traditions for quiet and persistent valor, to bring her safely into harbor.

Torrance, Calif., Looks Like Ruins Of Bombed City

Earthquake Plays Havoc with Most of the Older Buildings

By FRANK FRAWLEY
TORRANCE, Calif., Nov. 14 (AP)—This bustling industrial city looks today as though a squadron of bombers had cruised over and let go with sights trained on only the oldest business buildings.

Shattered windows cased in— and most of them are—bow out. They look as if something had hit them from the sky, not from the ground beneath. The picture after today's quake is different than 1933. Then buildings were just twisted off their foundations.

Other walls are going to fall. One could almost stand and watch them disintegrate—bending out and out from the strain. The collapse may come at any instance. Barricades keep the curious away.

So do the police. Most nightseers are stopped outside the business district. At one time there was a two-mile traffic jam on an incoming highway.

Jack Lynch, owner of the wrecked hotel Torrance, was philosophical.

"If in Bangor, Maine, where I come from, we were taught to take it. I bought this hotel as a gamble two years ago and it looks like I drew the wrong cards. I was just starting to make a little money, but I hadn't attended to getting insurance."

Stores were closed, but bars did a thriving business.

"This place was condemned in the 1933 quake," one tavern keeper remarked. "But you notice we're still in business. And you notice business is good."

A woman was talking:

"That first quake tossed me clear across the room. It's a good thing, because it tossed my new refrigerator where I just was."

Probably no one is calmer in an earthquake than a veteran Californian, unless it's an Oriental. Yukio Tamura missed being buried under a crashing brick wall by inches.

"I thought lightning had struck with that first quake," he said. "Then I realized it was just an earthquake and was about to turn over and go back to sleep. Then everything came in."

Will Start Honeymoon in Central Park

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14 (AP)—The navy handed Sailor Bill Langford a ten-day leave today, paying the way for him and pretty Josephine Phillips to start their honeymoon on the bench in New York's Central Park where their story-book romance began.

The 22-year-old tar paused just long enough to buy an engagement ring—a Philadelphia jeweler has given him a wedding ring—before boarding a train to Garfield, N. J., where Josephine is waiting.

The 18-year-old girl was cold, broke, and hungry when Bill found her on the park bench and befriended her. The next day he was transferred to Philadelphia, but they were brought together again after she was arrested for vagrancy and her story got into the newspapers.

Bill said the license-waiting period probably will delay the wedding until next Thursday, but come what may he's got his heart set on starting things off on that park bench.

Germans Report

at points from which they could see and choose their targets.

German bombers raided Caucasian points across the strait and covered an extensive region of the Black Sea's northeast coast. Among their targets were Novorossiysk, an alternative Russian naval base and Anapa, the airport of which was described as one of the outer defenses of the Caucasian oil region and a training place for many Soviet paratroopers.

At Sevastopol in the southwest of the Crimea, gunners and aviators concentrated on ships and general harbor activity with orders to disturb the evacuation of Red army troops as much as possible. Two Russian coastal batteries were declared silenced here, two big freighters damaged and important military installations in the harbor smashed.

One variation in the long story of the siege of Leningrad, on the north, came with details of the reported sinking of a big Russian transport by a mine. Otherwise, war on the Leningrad front was the same monotonous booming of siege guns firing across the narrows at almost point-blank range on the Kronstadt naval works and the Leningrad industrial districts.

Lewis and Steel

The transcript of the president's remarks released by the White House made no mention of the Defense Mediation Board's recommendation last Monday that the UMW sign a contract that did not include a union shop clause. As asked by the UMW, such a clause would require all workers in the mines to join the union after a period of probationary employment.

The president's action appeared to have returned the dispute to the status it had before the Mediation Board's most recent recommendation.

At the Mediation Board's headquarters, a spokesman described members of the board as highly pleased with the White House move. It was regarded, he said, as "complete vindication" of the board's original position.

Twice Before Board
The case has been before the board twice. In the first instance, a board panel recommended that the dispute be submitted to arbitration by the full board or by arbiters chosen by a union-management committee. In arbitration, the parties to a dispute bind themselves in advance to accept the arbiter's decision.

John L. Lewis, president of the UMW, sharply criticized the board panel for not passing directly on the issue in dispute. Thereupon, President Roosevelt intervened and proposed that the union shop question be submitted to the full board but with the understanding that neither party would be bound by its recommendations.

Lewis agreed, but set tomorrow midnight as the deadline for recommendations, with the implication that he would call a new strike of the 53,000 miners in these pits at that time if board delays its decision beyond that date.

There followed the board's report of last Monday and Mr. Roosevelt's second direct intervention with the calling of today's conference.

It was not clear whether the UMW, by resuming direct negotiations, had bound itself to the second point of Mr. Roosevelt's proposal—arbitration in event negotiations failed.

The UMW announced only that it had agreed to three days of negotiations.

"We will all have to make sacrifices we haven't begun to make," he told the joint convention of the Association of National Advertisers and the American Association of Advertising Agencies. "We can muddle along for years at the present rate or give large amounts of aid to Britain and Russia immediately so they can end the war quickly."

Paul B. West, president of the ANA, said at the conclusion of Batt's talk that the convention had assembled on a note of business as usual but was adjourning with the determination to join wholeheartedly in the defense effort.

Batt said the advertising profession had an opportunity and an obligation to ascertain and inform its clients what they could do for defense.

Before Price Administrator Leon Henderson addressed the convention yesterday, Batt went on, probably four of every five men at the convention considered him a "dangerous crackpot" but after hearing him those four of the five changed their minds.

Henderson is the one in authority in Washington, Batt said, and business can't get anywhere standing off and saying "to hell with you."

The greatest unwitting violators of the law, Elgin declared, are those who fail to properly stop and identify themselves after an accident.

"Many of these cases are merely technical, and the defendants do not realize the seriousness or consequences until they hear from this office, which is then too late to file an appeal," Elgin declared, adding: "In a number of cases, a fender has been slightly scratched, or dented, and both drivers, thinking little or no damage has been done, drive on. Later on, one will find he has a scratch or a dent, and will swear out a warrant for the other's arrest—and on a technicality, he is found guilty."

Army Camp of No Use to Indians

They Have It for a Time but Are Glad To Return It to Whites

CAMP LEE, Va., Nov. 14 (AP)—The army gave Camp Lee back to the Indians for a while and the Red men forthwith went into their dance and burned that man in effigy.

The Indians were honest Indians—six selectees of Mohawk, Creek and Cherokee descent. But they chose a November morn a mite too cold and misty for their undress performance.

At first it didn't look as if the performance would be entirely Kuchee—or Indian. Corporal Robert Denny, a Cherokee, marched his regulation-clad men to the dance site in squad-formation and commanded:

"Dismiss and disrobe."

They stripped down to breechcloths, army brogans, head-feathers and war paint, chattered in Indian and in efforts to keep warm, touched off a camp fire and went into the act. One of them brought out a life-sized effigy of the cause if it all and it was burned; scalped first though.

Then the Indians decided to give the camp back to the army.

"Let's quit," said a brave. "I'm cold and besides I gotta dance in Petersburg this morning."

Roosevelt Calls

the United States become involved in war in the Orient.

Some observers contended the timing of the announcement in relation to the house vote on neutrality yesterday and the arrival of Saburo Kurosu in San Francisco this morning on a trans-Pacific plane furnished its own significance.

They believed the United States was showing Japan that its decks were cleared for action in case hostilities should break out.

The president's hands apparently were strengthened by the House vote to remove combat zone restrictions on American shipping and authorize the arming of merchant vessels.

Administration speakers had repeatedly called on members in the closing hours of debate yesterday to support the administration's position in foreign affairs, especially because of the developing crisis in Japanese relations.

Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference that he did not consider the close vote (212-194) by which revision finally was approved to be any indication of disunity in America although the opponents of the administration policy strongly disputed this view.

As for the Japanese situation, Mr. Roosevelt said he hoped war would be avoided in the Pacific, but when asked whether he knew how it could be avoided he declined to reply either yes or no, on the ground that whatever he said might be misconstrued.

29th Division Show May Soon Be Reproduced

General Reckord Hopes To Revive "Snap It Up Again"

CHERAW, S. C., Nov. 14 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commander of the Twenty-Ninth division, said today the ill-fated divisional show, "Snap It Up Again," may be revived when the Blue and Gray troops from Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia return to their home state at Fort George G. Meade about Dec. 12.

The presentation was closed by war department order several weeks ago in Richmond when troops were in the middle of a booking schedule which would have taken them on a circuit including Pittsburgh, Washington and Philadelphia. Near capacity audiences attending opening performances in Baltimore.

No official release explained why these shows were closed but some officers said the war department hesitated to allow military entertainers to compete with civilian professionals.

General Reckord said war department officials, in a letter authorizing the show's revival, stated performances would be allowed only in areas where enlisted men of the division were residents.

Every effort will be made to renew "Snap It Up Again," the general said. However, he stressed that no action to reorganize would be taken until the division completes its part in first army maneuvers in the Carolinas.

Officers said the show's untimely closing put the division several hundred dollars in the Red, a deficit which would probably have to be made up by voluntary contributions from officers and men.

Waltman Resigns Post with G.O.P.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—Franklin Waltman announced today his resignation as director of publicity of the Republican National committee, a post he has held for four years.

Waltman submitted his resignation to National Chairman Joseph W. Martin "to take effect during the next several weeks" and Martin said Waltman would remain with the committee to arrange for the work to continue.

In a letter to Martin, Waltman said he desired to return to newspaper work and that he believed that "if there is to be change in the post of publicity director, it should take place before the new year when the plans you are formulating are launched for the successful conduct of the 1942 congressional campaign."

Martin, in his reply, said that "you have given the committee and the Republican party four years of faithful and efficient service and we shall all be sorry to see you go."

Waltman was formerly on the staff of the Washington Post.

Five Children Burn To Death in Home

MISSOULA, Mont., Nov. 14 (AP)—Five children died in their blazing home today while their widowed mother, Mrs. Frances Perrine, was across the street caring for an invalid neighbor.

The dead were Elmer 9, Francis 5; Richard 4; Michael 3; and Donald, five and a half months old.

The baby died in a hospital after his mother raced into the blazing house and carried him out.

Four older children were not at home.

Departing Aliens Must Have Permits

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—Aliens desiring to leave the United States henceforth will be required to obtain exit permits from the secretary of state, according to regulations published today by the state department in accordance with a proclamation issued by President Roosevelt.

Since the beginning of the present war various belligerent countries have required exit permits from foreigners leaving their territory. Soviet Russia has had such a requirement for years.

Dummy Torpedoes Lost

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—Along with all their other troubles, ship masters were warned by the navy today to be on the lookout for two lost dummy torpedoes.

The torpedoes were dropped and lost yesterday in Hampton Roads channel, Chesapeake Bay, Virginia, about a mile west of Port Wolf. Presumably they were being used in torpedo plane practice.

If anybody sees them and is not frightened out of his wits, he should advise the naval air station at Norfolk, Va.

Convention Asks 12-Year Program For Md. Schools

Parents and Teachers Seek Uniform Plan for Entire State

BETHESDA, Md., Nov. 14 (AP)—Delegates representing some 14,000 Maryland parents and teachers were on record today favoring legislation for a twelve-year educational program throughout the state.

Support of the proposal to make all schools in the state follow a twelve-year curriculum was one of the major resolutions adopted at the closing session of the annual convention of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Numerous schools throughout the state still have an eleven-year program for Grade and High School training.

Other resolutions adopted called for:

Revision of the state's food, drug and cosmetics law to provide more adequate protection to consumers.

Suppression of the traffic in Marijuana.

A strong stand against alleged prevalence of indecent literature on news stands.

Increased appropriations for the vocational rehabilitation program.

Increased state appropriation to meet "the urgent demand" for adult education classes in all communities of Maryland.

"Constant vigilance" to guard against diversion of funds from educational and other essential services for children.

The seven resolutions were drawn by a committee headed by Miss Elizabeth Emery.

Trucking Strike Is Called Off

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (AP)—Union officials and truck line operators tonight reached an agreement averting a threatened strike of nearly 300,000 APL truck drivers in eleven midwestern states.

Union locals had authorized a strike upon expiration of the present contract at midnight tomorrow but the call had not been issued. The agreement was announced tonight after Joseph L. Keenan, OPM labor representative from Washington, had been in conference with the disputants.

Keenan said that both sides, in the interest of national defense, had agreed to refer unsettled issues of wages and working conditions to the National Defense Mediation Board and to abide by the board's decision.

Youths Shoot Boy To "Make Him Jump"

WESTMINSTER, Md., Nov. 14 (AP)—Two youths quoted by a deputy sheriff as saying they fired a rifle shot at another boy to "make him jump," were charged with manslaughter today in an indictment returned by the Carroll county grand jury.

The youths, Scott Parley, 15, and Ryle Springman, 13, were accused of fatally shooting Russell Barnes, 12, in the front yard of his parents' home near Pinksburg last Aug. 26. They have been free under $500 bond each.

The Barnes boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Barnes, was shot in the head with a .22 calibre bullet as he sat in the yard eating candy with a cousin. He was one of ten children.

Deputy Sheriff Wesley Mathias, Jr., who investigated the shooting, said Parley and Springman, each carrying a rifle, rode by on bicycles and one of them aimed over the Barnes boy's head and fired "to make him jump."

Liner Washington Is Presented to British

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—The navy said today that the famous old World War liner George Washington, now the navy transport Catlin, had been transferred to Great Britain.

The transfer took place Sept. 26, the navy reported. As the George Washington, the 23-788-ton ship was a transport in the World War. It also carried President Wilson to the peace conference which followed.

The George Washington once was a German ship, seized from its German owners April 6, 1917, when the United States entered the war.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The specter ship of the European war, the huge aircraft carrier Ark Royal which has haunted Hitler and Mussolini's victory dreams for two years like a nautical Banquo's ghost, has gone to the bottom finally, sunk by an Axis submarine.

That is a hard blow to the British; but nothing like the jolt her loss would have been had it come when Axis spokesmen first jubilantly proclaimed her destruction more than two years ago. Britain's seaborne air power is relatively and absolutely greater today than it was when the war started despite the addition of the 22,000-ton Hornet's nest to her heavy casualty list.

Frequently in Action
That the Ark Royal will be enshrined in British annals with hero ships as Nelson's Victory goes without saying. Her log books record many an action in far seas before Berlin and Rome verily bombed her out of the war tell a thrilling story.

The essential fact, however, is that she lived and fought on to an hour when her loss meant no vital impairment of British sea power. And sea power, in its triple modern sense of combat aloft, afloat, and on the sea's restless surface, still is Britain's ultimate guarantee against her foes. Britannia still rules the waves that wash the shores of her world-girdling empire.

The presumption that it was an Italian submarine which downed the Ark Royal arises from the scene of action, east of the "The Rock" in the Mediterranean. The mere fact that the ship was in those waters and based, as indicated, at Gibraltar stresses Italy's failure to live up to her full share in the Axis war bargain.

Victory for Italians
Sinking of the Ark Royal will be hailed by Rome as an offset for a steadily growing list of irreparable Fascist sea losses in the Mediterranean. Rome needed some such happenings to bolster the flagging zeal of her naval and air forces, never yet victorious against the British except with German help and guidance.

Yet even an official Nazi or German assertion that it was an Italian undersea boat which scored against the Ark Royal would not be fully convincing. There are imperative reasons to compel Hitler to go again to the rescue of his Axis mate in the Mediterranean at the earliest possible moment.

British military forecasters foresee return in swarms of Nazi bombers to Crete and Sicily the moment they can be spared from the slow-motion Russian front. British naval and air forces have made the supply route for Axis armies in Libya a desperate gamble. Failure to sustain those armies adequately will mean inevitable British attack upon them from Egypt, with every prospect of sweeping North Africa clear this time of German or Italian resistance.

More Attacks Predicted
Rumblings promises of bigger and better U-boat warfare against Britain came from Berlin even before London acknowledged loss of the Ark Royal. The North Atlantic, where the battle of sea attrition has been a losing Nazi game for four long months, was the indicated

The Germans continued to bring up reserves to the Moscow front, but successful Red army assaults were reported in the direction of at least one operating base, Zarechie.

Russian Position Good
On both north and south extremities of the front the Russian position was described as equally good.

The Germans were reported driven from strategic heights and forced back several kilometers in the Arctic Murmansk zone; a mobile SS (Elite) Nazi division was declared routed before Rostov-on-Don, northern key to the Caucasus.

Russian reinforcements were pressing toward the Caucasian front to block a German drive from the Crimea.

A Moscow radio report picked up in New York said the besieged Red armies at Leningrad had broken through the German encirclement at one point and had driven through to the Nazi rear.

The rolling east to west shock hit the Los Angeles area at 12:43 a. m. (PST) continuing eighteen or twenty seconds in the Torrance and Gardena areas. It awakened residents of Los Angeles and inland communities north and east as far as Glendale, Pasadena and Whittier and was felt heavily in Long Beach and other seacoast cities.

A lighter quake, felt chiefly in the Torrance area, followed at 1:36 a. m.

Long Beach Escapes

scene of that submarine deployment. Revised American neutrality policy, permitting armed merchant craft to serve British or other anti-Axis war needs in any sea or port, definitely adds to Hitler's sea problem.

Yet at the moment his most urgent necessity is to keep the attention of the ever-growing British empire armies in the east diverted from the Russian war scene.

The lesson of the terrific struggle of air power versus sea power the shocked world is now witnessing is that air power alone cannot prove the master. German submarines have been constantly a more deadly menace to the British than swarming German bombers.

What is more natural, then, than that German U-boats are already moving into the Mediterranean to take over from the fumbling and ineffective Fascists the job of meeting the threatening British sea attacks?

The entire plant will be air conditioned for the workers' comfort and to keep shrinkage and expansion of the airplane metals at a minimum winter and summer.

the Royal navy since the German battleship Bismarck sank the British battle cruiser Hood last May and was herself then destroyed by the implacable British squadrons that dogged her down and tore her to pieces in a classical revenge.

It would not have been possible without the Ark Royal, for it was she who flung out her attacking planes to trap the German; it was the Ark Royal that was largely responsible for the Bismarck's doom.

Survives German Threats
She survived—this stout and gallant British ship—by more than two full years the first, and often repeated, German notice of her death. For Berlin had pronounced her sunk in the first months of the war and then had asked mockingly again and again: "Where is the Ark Royal? . . . Where is the Ark Royal?"

Mr. Galen Tait and The Cause of Unity

GALEN L. TATE, a respected Republican leader of Maryland, is out in a lengthy statement urging party members to join "the cause of unity."

Republicans, as well as many others, are ready, willing and anxious to join the cause of unity. It is true that they have been somewhat mystified as to some things on which it seems necessary to unite, but so far as patriotic devotion and duty are concerned, they are as loyal and as dependable as anybody else or any other class under any other label.

So far they are united on two things—adequate national defense and aid to Great Britain and the other democracies resisting aggression. When they get a clear program about extending its defense aid and duties to the far corners of the world and about scattering more money around more recklessly than in the last world war, and more especially the requisite backing therefor, they will probably be able to unite on it—in opinion at least.

But, the big thing that worries the party members along with numerous others who cannot be wrought up into a frenzy of war emotionalism is the deplorable situation surrounding the transcendent American obligation of home defense, which they regard as the foundation of their whole emergency effort. If the obstructions, interferences and handicaps can be removed there, the national unity so necessary can be achieved as quickly—snap!—as that.

There are a number of things to be done and the need for doing them has long been obvious that it is inexplicable why they have not been done. They are so well known that a listing is superfluous but in the main they involve positive and workable remedies for the continuation of strikes in defense industries, for inflation, for the throttling of little industry, for swollen inefficient government and for continued squandering of our substance on non-essentials. But the greatest of these is the interference with defense production. The whole thing can be summed in the single term of preparedness.

What Mr. Tait and other leaders should concern themselves about more than any lack of enthusiasm among the people is the cause of that lack of enthusiasm. That is to say, the pulling of the stopper from the neck of the big bottle. The stuff is all there, pent up and all ready to gush forth. But the stopper must be removed, and it cannot be removed by the blind and ape-like following of wrong policies and the bid to acquiesce in the lack of policy where it is so palpably needed.

Emphasis Now Goes on Tanks

EVIDENTLY this nation's industrial production strategists are satisfied that the basis of ample warplane production has now been laid and are turning their attention to the warplane's offensive partner—the tank.

Tank production plans are on a rapidly expanding basis. Last August it was decided to step up production of medium tanks from 600 monthly to 1,000. A month later events suggested reconsideration of this goal and it was concluded that a program of 2,000 medium tanks a month, together with 500 light tanks and 500 heavy tanks was necessary. Now it is indicated in Washington that even this total is too little and the mark aimed at is 3,000 medium tanks monthly.

Behind this emphasis on tanks seems to be conclusions drawn by Uncle Sam's military observers of the Nazi-Russian war. There the tank is playing a dominant part on both sides. It has been found that the only answer to an offensive tank is a defensive tank, just as the only answer to a fighting plane is another plane.

And so the United States is going in for a tank production program designed to outstrip Hitler, with the expectation by the midsummer of 1942, 100 of the land weapons will be rolling off the assembly lines every twenty-four hours. But before that time American tanks will be tested on the battlefields of Russia. In fact, observers say that if Russia turns the tide of battle permanently against Hitler this turn in the tide of the war will have been made possible by American tanks which are now being rushed to the Soviet.

Timely Warning Of Fog Perils

DANGER to motorists and pedestrians on fog-shrouded highways is the subject of a timely safety bulletin issued by the Keystone Automobile Club.

Both drivers and walkers are urged to be on their guard against the fog perils, the club asserting that only the utmost care will prevent deaths and injuries.

"Pedestrians," said Edward P. Curran, safety director of the club, "should be extremely cautious when walking along highways obscured by fog, because their presence can be noted by drivers only under the most exceptional circumstances.

"Those afoot can see the lights of approaching cars and should govern their actions accordingly. They should realize that the lights are of little value to motorists in discerning objects on the highway. In fact the principal value of lights in time of fog is to warn of vehicles' approach.

"Motorists should always drive slowly under adverse weather conditions. There are those who believe their familiarity with highways over which they travel frequently gives them the right to drive fast in fog. Drivers in this class fail to take into account the possibility of disabled cars being parked along the highway. Another great danger is the absence of tail-lights on moving vehicles, and the confusion, leading to erratic driving, of operators unaccustomed to the road.

"Drivers of horse-drawn vehicles should not, under any circumstances, venture on fog-bound roads without lights on their vehicles."

Let all concerned take heed of these timely warnings.

Seizure of Plants Not the Answer

"IF the CIO moves toward a showdown with the government," observes the Baltimore Sun, "neither the president nor the Congress should hesitate to make the showdown complete and final.

"The president should take over mines or plants, if necessary to continue operations, and should use the armed forces of the nation to preserve order.

"The Congress should, by statute, limit strikes in defense industries for the period of the emergency, and the president should sign."

These are admitted by the Sun to be serious steps. They are. It may be necessary to take them. But these steps will not cure the cancer that is now eating at the vitals of American industrial welfare. Just permanent rules to insure industrial peace could long since have been provided. In fact the Congress twice moved to provide them but was restrained by the president. Temporary regulations or prohibitions would only leave an outlet for a serious and perhaps disastrous outbreak of the disease immediately at the close of the war emergency, perhaps before then.

As this newspaper has before declared, seizure of plants, mines and factories is not the right answer, either in the interests of labor or in the interests of the people. It is an expedient that should be avoided if at all possible. The true answer lies elsewhere.

A midwestern gardener has perfected a technique of spraying brown spots on the lawn with grass green paint. Now if he'd only develop a means of keeping the leaves pasted on the trees.

If latest reports are correct the school children in Germany must be in for a tough time—having to study both the regular South American map and the secret Hitler one.

The army, we read, has a new mechanism which can spot hidden enemy artillery twenty miles away. After the war civilians might borrow it for defense against bill collectors.

A hat shortage is reported in Germany. Soon we may see a photo of Propaganda Minister Goebbels talking rapidly through ersatz headgear.

Tough Little Boys

By MARSHALL MASLIN

The small boys are playing football in a vacant lot—and this idler strolls over there and sits down on a bench in the crisp autumn air to watch them.

They range in age from seven to ten years and their mothers would be shocked if they could see their sons. Giddy-giddy-gout with their dirty shirts tails out and their dirty faces and the way they yell at each other. . . I don't know much about them but I know their fathers and it's fascinating to see how much they resemble their dads in the way they walk, in casual gestures, in their conduct on the playing field.

There's Bobby, for instance. He's built just like his dad, solid and short and sturdy. . . And there's Frankie, a good youngster with a highstrung nature. HE gets that from his dad, too. . . I look at them. I think of their fathers. I try to imagine these youngsters twenty or thirty years from now, moving through a world we can hardly imagine now, with the characters of the grown men I know.

But those tads, just as I see them on that field with footballs are more fascinating to themselves than any of my speculations about the life that waits for them beyond the ramparts of childhood.

I see one kid kick an expert dropkick back across the playground. I cheer and tell him he's as good a young football player as a certain college star. . . I tell him I saw Frankie Albert kick two just like that in a football game the day before. . . The little imp turns around, stares me up and down and dismisses me with: "Well, who didn't?" His mother would be shocked at such impudence and she'd reprove him. But she'd be mistaken. What right has this grown-up interloper making such remarks to a small boy at play? Do I know him? Have we ever been introduced? . . . Let me keep my place.

They're a tough gang. After a hard scrimmage, they go over to the side of the field and blow their noses in that immemorially tough fashion forbidden by etiquette. . . And between plays they hitch up their belts and spit! They spit straight down, they spit high, wide, and flamboyantly, they spit till you wonder where they get all that spit. . . And I wouldn't dream of asking them why they do it—but I think it's part of some boyish code. Catch a punt and run it back and spit. Make a slick tackle and spit. Throw a forward pass and spit!

Lord! how those small boys do ape their elders and try to act grown-up! . . . And I? Do I sit here and wish I were a youngster again, playing football in the fall of the year? . . . I do NOT! All that spitting would wear me down—and out!

Reports Disclose Inflation Menace Is Growing Fast

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The specter of inflation is rising behind the news. A price administration assistant told a local audience, inflation is not coming, it is here.

Robert Nathan, respected as the government's most evenly balanced economist, told a New York audience: "There is no question but that we are in a stage of inflation. Prices have been rising too fast."

Assistant Treasury Secretary Gaston said about the same thing in a New Haven address.

Some of this official talk may be attributed to the government's desire to get the price control and tax bills through Congress. But the point is accepted as sound in the financial marts outside of government influence. Organizations of college economists are pamphleteering daily concerning the danger. Panicky booklets are in circulation. "This is the same kind of inflation which Mr. Roosevelt told Congress only last July 30 would ruin the defense effort and the people—not merely those people who have money to lose, but the poor who suffer most in the crash that always follows spirals that get out of control."

Could Be Stopped

Inflation could be stopped but there is no sound evidence yet that it will be. Indeed some administration leftists are beginning to claim it might not be so bad, saying it is a method of taxation, a capital levy in disguise.

Britain failed to stop the spiral with the same feeble measures that we promise to employ. But Hitler stopped it in Germany in circumstances ten times worse than ours.

The remedies are simple. A courageous fixing of all prices and wages might alone accomplish the result in our situation. This does not mean the loose formula suggested by the administration, or the far feeble bill now in the House, would do the job. But an arbitrary over-all law, making violations a criminal offense (for inflation is a crime against the people), might be sufficiently observed to effect the results. Because this is not now even being considered is the main reason a severe inflation is accepted as inevitable.

Rationing an Implement

Rationing could be imposed as an implement of enforcement, if necessary. (Mr. Gaston mentioned this as a possibility for next year.)

Taxation is being offered by the Treasury as the main antidote, but outside economists list it third. Utmost revenue is needed to finance the defense effort anyway, so if these taxes serve the secondary purpose of absorbing the excess income of the people, it can thus be justified. But the old fashioned Liberty bond would be much of the same job better.

This kind of inflation is not difficult to understand. It means a boom that gets out of control and results in a crash. Prices rise so fast they cannot be sustained. The dollar cheapens in value every time a price rises. More dollars are needed to buy food and clothing. Finally, the dollar may buy only fifty cents or less of what it formerly bought. When people come to see this and lose confidence, the crash begins.

Everybody Loses. No one beats inflation. Only a few speculators, lucky enough to time their operations successfully, have ground for hope. Those who possess anything of value feel the full percentage effect of the loss. The poor man generally loses his job or his home or his automobile (anything he does not own outright). The farmer, least able to pay his debts and taxes, generally loses most.

But there is a tendency among worker and farmer to like the high prices and good living while they last, not looking forward to the time of suffering ahead. Thus an absence of popular pressure on Congress and the administration for courageous action is generally noticeable.

No Hedges

There are no hedges against inflation. Financial experts tell you to buy things of material worth, like jewels, land, antiques, possibly common stocks. But if you try to sell these in the post-boom depression, you will probably find the market for them suffered as much as anything else.

The best advice I have heard is make yourself most valuable in the work you are doing by increasing your knowledge and skill. That is the best job insurance and the best hedge against inflation you can get.

My personal prophecy is that enough people will soon be talking about it, to cause the government to do something effective to avoid it.

Fair Question; From the Charge

From the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail

Has America lost all sense of human and moral proportions, asks Herbert Hoover, charging that the United States State department is meddling in attempting to force Finland to conclude a peace with Russia. It is a fair question and a fair charge. What right, indeed, has this country to inject itself into the war between Finland and Russia and say to one of the combatants, "This has gone far enough?"

There can be no denying that the people of the United States would like to see some sort of peace which would satisfy the Finns and free Russia to concentrate her energies on the Germans. The defeat of Hitler, by the Russians if possible, is naturally one of this country's primary concerns, and it would be gratifying if the possibility of that defeat could be increased even a little by Finland's acceptance of a peace.

For all that, it seems presumptuous on the part of the state department to suggest to an independent nation that it cease hostilities. The Finns are, after all, in the best position to judge their adversary, and it must be admitted that they have little reason to trust or honor him. However much it may complicate this country's present program of aiding Russia, it cannot be forgotten here that it was only two years ago when our sympathies, and for good cause, were entirely for Finland. Then Russia was the aggressor, and the issue was clear.

Much has happened in two years to confuse the picture and arouse a conflict of emotions. It is inevitable that a fight between Finland, an old friend, and Russia, a new and wholly unexpected ally, should present its problems for this country. In all fairness it must be admitted, however, that Finland has as much right to seek redress from Russia for past wrongs as Russia has the right to resist present wrongs at the hands of the Germans. Failing that, the only course remaining is one of neutrality. It may not be easy, but it is only just.

Factographs

The first words ever heard over a telephone were, "Mr. Watson, come here, I want you." They were addressed to Alexander Graham Bell's assistant, Watson, by Bell himself.

Living cost for industrial workers in Shanghai, China, are 106 percent above a year ago, the department of Commerce reports.

A watch balance vibrating exactly 18,000 times each hour will keep perfect time.

For opposition in Congress to repeal of neutrality, there were several motives. Of them all, the most vital was disapproval of President Roosevelt's attitude about strikes.

The strength of this motive was illustrated by two especially able Virginia Democrats, Both believed strongly in the president's foreign policy; both voted for every step of it. But both came to the end of the road, for an identical reason.

Senator Harry F. Byrd, when the measure was in that body, said: "We have menaces at home as great or greater than those abroad, and these home menaces must be dealt with before we can hope to deal with the others." Representative Howard W. Smith, said in the House: "I cannot find it in my conscience to vote for this kind of measure until we are prepared."

And he added that he was "reluctantly forced to conclude" we will not be prepared until the president is willing to act about strikes.

Other Motives Also. There were other motives for opposition. The number whose motive was outright isolation, who wished to preserve the extreme neutrality act as it stood, was comparatively small. There were some who opposed repeal because they feel the president is taking the country into war by indirection, and by steps of his own without sanction by Congress—in the debate the word "subterfuge" was occasionally used. But it was the strike motive that counted.

The number and character of those who opposed for this motive, gave justification and color to men who opposed for other motives. But for the strike factor, the majority for repeal of neutrality would have been substantially as great as the majorities Woodrow Wilson had for his resistance to Germany twenty-four years ago.

It was all very well to say, as was said over and over, in effect: "First things first—repeal the Neutrality Act, and then act about strikes." But those who resisted this advice knew what they were doing; some knew clearly, others instinctively. They felt, whether mistakenly or not, that there is a domestic peril comparable to the danger from abroad.

Social Change Feared

The motive for opposition to repeal of neutrality was commonly spoken of as disapproval of the president's attitude about strikes. But the motive was broader. Senator Byrd expressed it accurately when he spoke of it as "menaces at home." The menace, as felt by those who feared it, could be expressed thus: That for defense against war, great powers are being granted to the executive, including powers having to do with labor; that these powers are being used in such a way as to set up what was called in the debate a "labor government"; that these powers, as used, may result in a permanent change in American society, including an increase of centralized power in the Executive, a reduction of power of Congress.

For more than a year, Congress has wanted to legislate about labor. Congress felt that the original Wagner Labor Relations act had been interpreted by the original Labor board in ways that Congress never contemplated. To remedy this, the House, in June 1940, passed amendments to the Labor act, by a vote of more than 2 to 1. For largely the same purpose, to restrain excessive use of power by both the Labor board and other executive agencies, the House passed, by a vote of more than 3 to 1, the Walter-Logan act. Both these measures were prevented from final enactment by the administration and its friends in Congress.

Halved Again

When a new Congress came into being last January, it was disposed to act upon these measures again. But friends of the administration in Congress took the position that there should be no legislation about labor, except such as the president initiated or approved in advance. At all times, there has been in Congress an overwhelming majority favoring legislation about strikes. At all times action upon such measures has been prevented by reference of leaders to the president.

Meanwhile, Congress has seen agencies of the administration take steps and adopt policies which ninetenths of Congress does not approve. Congress has seen a presidential appointee, Mr. Sidney Hillman, himself a labor leader by career, assume control of labor relations in defense industries. Congress has seen Mr. Hillman adopt a policy of giving defense construction contracts only to such contractors as employ American Federation of Labor workers. Congress has seen a committee of the Senate investigate a conspicuous case, in which Mr. Hillman prevented award of a contract to the lowest bidder, solely for the reason that the bidder did not employ AFL labor. The Senate has heard the chairman of its investigating committee condemn Mr. Hillman's action in strong unqualified words. But Congress has seen Mr. Hillman hold his ground, with Congress unable to do anything about it.

What the opponents of repeal of neutrality say, in effect, is: "We will not vote to give further war powers to the president until the president's appointees and agencies cease to use those powers, in domestic matters, in ways which Congress does not approve."

No Longer A Choice

From the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail

Mrs. Roosevelt in her ladylike way is considerably excited over a pledge which American housewives will soon be asked to sign. It is a pledge asking their co-operation in saving food and otherwise practicing the virtues of thrift in the national emergency.

This, we submit, is an interesting and well-intended idea which may possibly accomplish some good. Thrift is still one of the traditional virtues, at least for private citizens if not for governmental agencies, and possibly no harm will arise from a campaign on its behalf. What strikes us, however, is that the campaign is hardly necessary.

It is a good guess that thrift is no longer a matter of choice in most American homes. It is a matter of necessity. It is no longer a question of transforming last night's roast into tonight's hash, using incidentally a few left-over vegetables, simply out of an academic interest in home economics. It is a question of doing the trick and without raising a family fuss or doing without meat at all tomorrow night.

It may help to have the formal support of American housewives in tending to this economic problem but it looks here as if not much help is needed. Higher prices have already accomplished what no amount of pledging could hope to do.

Johnson Insists High Taxes Will Jack Up Prices

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—"We must remember," wrote Mr. Roosevelt to Chairman Doughton, asking for greatly increased taxes, "that taxation is a necessary complement of price control because the continuing effectiveness of price control is largely the restriction of the demand for goods."

"The President is completely right in this," says the New York Times. It went even farther and said that "taxation is the basic means of preventing inflation for it strikes at the causes of inflation, whereas price controls merely strike at the effects."

It could be of great benefit to this country to have this hoary nonsense argued to its death. Inflation means just one thing. It means high prices for what you buy.

Cigarettes Give Example

Anybody that doesn't know that high taxes mean high prices should reflect that the tax per package on cigarettes is six cents and that this alone makes that package cost him from one-third to one-half more than he would pay otherwise. Or if he drives an automobile he might ask the percentage of price that is made up purely of federal state and local taxes. He will find that without these taxes his price would be from half to a third lower.

Nobody was ever more eloquent in making this point clear than Mr. Roosevelt in his speech at Pittsburgh in 1932. There he showed how nearly all taxes reached the housewives' market basket and said:

"Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors."

What these people are trying to say, and saying it precisely backward—forward is that higher taxes will make, not lower, but higher prices. They want higher prices because they say the common people, due to a defense boom, will soon have much money to spend and it is hoped to take it away from them in high taxes so that there will be more material available for government.

Many Will Have Less

Well, some of the people are going to have more money to spend, but a whole lot of them are going to have less. As has been shown in recent columns and amply elsewhere, "priorities" unemployment, bankruptcies and distress threaten a serious disaster. Unless we are careful we shall have our country again "half-boom and half-bust."

If we have price control both halves will be benefited. But if we begin to jack-up prices by more and more fantastic taxes, while the "boom" half may be able to pay them, the "bust" half can only do a little more starving. Don't forget also that high prices due to exaggerated taxes are just one more burden to be laid upon the backs of future generations because they multiply the cost of the defense effort. Such increases in cost have already added billions to the burden.

"Monkey Business" Ahead

With the widely advertised "victory" production which is to double our present effort the total cost would run to 120 billions. To put it flatly, that is more money than we can ever hope to pay.

We are going to run into some funny monkey business as sure as the sun rises—depreciation, repudiation or printing-press hocus-pocus. I know it is heresy, but with such a prospect ahead it makes one wonder whether higher taxes isn't exactly the wrong answer and we should frankly start the monkey business now. It is all going to be monkey business anyway.

Labor's Friends Should Act Now

From the Pittsburgh Press

American opinion is running against labor—rather, is running against labor abuses—as unmistakably as it ran against prohibition for years before the politicians screwed up courage to defy the Anti-Saloon League. As unmistakably as it ran against capital's abuses before the New Deal swept into power on a promise to end those abuses.

We think American opinion right now would support savage legislation that would set the cause of labor back fifty years. And the country can't afford that sort of legislation.

We know American opinion would support wise and moderate legislation that would preserve labor's rights by requiring labor responsibility. Why, then, is there no such legislation? Because the politicians tremble in fear of the labor bosses' lobby, just as they used to tremble in fear of the Anti-Saloon League and of the bosses of capital.

Why does the pendulum swing so often and so violently in this country, from dangerous abuses to dangerous reaction? Because the politicians who govern are afraid to make a politically entrenched minority stop imposing on the unorganized majority—until the will of the majority finally expresses itself in a furious demand for relief from an intolerable situation.

Organized labor will get just what the Anti-Saloon League got, unless its real friends prevail on Congress to act while public opinion still permits it to act calmly and safely,

HOTEL SERVICE

An Exciting Story of Efficiency and How No One—Not Even Martin—Knew How Far It Could Go

By HOWARD BROWNE

Martin Reynolds squinted through the streaming windshield at the rain-swept sidewalk in front of the hotel. Because of the late hour and bad weather everyone was indoors except the bulky figure of the doorman, huddled under a white raincoat in the shelter of the main entrance.

He marveled a little over his own cautious bag in strange hands. With you, Martin Reynolds, it is different. Although you and I met only a few days ago, I knew at once I could trust you. As a rule a dealer in rare stones cannot afford the luxury of confiding in strangers. But a successful author such as you—particularly one who does authoritative articles about my favorite subjects—is above suspicion. I am richer because of your friendship, Martin Reynolds.

"Thank you," Martin was grateful for the darkness which hid his grimace. Successful author—what a laugh! He hadn't written anything more complicated than a letter since the day he left school. No, it had all been a part of his plan. Find calmness. Strange how an acquaintance, casually begun, could open the way to freedom from financial worry. Too bad that Gregory Merkooff must die to insure that freedom. But the stakes in this game were high—high enough, in fact, to warrant murder.

There was Merkooff, now—emerging from the revolving door, briefcase in hand, topcoat collar turned against the downpour. Martin eased the motor into first and moved slowly forward, timing his approach to coincide with the dapper Russian's arrival at the curb.

Martin was careful to keep his hot brim down and his face averted while Merkooff stepped from the shelter of the doorman's huge umbrella and slid hurriedly into the front seat. At once the light coupe jerked into motion, gathering speed along the rain-veiled, deserted boulevard.

Merkooff groped for a cigarette. In the flare of the match the planes and hollows of his dark face stood out briefly. "Very kind of you, Reynolds," His speech held a faint accent. "I do not like to use a taxi-cab while carrying this." He ran a hand caressingly across the briefcase on his knees.

"Frankly, I'm the one who should be thankful," said Martin, lightly. "It isn't everyday I have an opportunity of transporting a hundred thousands dollars in diamonds."

Merkooff chuckled. "I came very nearly not bringing them along. The hotel offered to send my briefcase to the station with the rest of my luggage. Say what you will about the American hotels, they certainly believe in giving service to their guests."

street light emphasized the dripping darkness.

They stood facing each other, their shoulders hunched against the rain. Reynolds held out his free hand.

"Give me that case," he said. "You would rob me, then?"

"Yes. And cut the stalling." There was only regret in Merkooff's voice. "You will go to prison for this, my friend."

"Give me that case!" snarled Reynolds. He tore the leather envelope from the other's hands and stepped back.

Now that the moment had come, Martin Reynolds knew the memory of what was to follow would haunt him for the remainder of his life. Yet he had no choice but to see it through. He wished the man would cry out or rush him or attempt to run away—anything other than just standing there looking sorry for him.

"I'm sorry, Merkooff," he mumbled thickly, "that I cannot let it go at this. But I'd rather chance the chair than rot in jail."

Merkooff seemed to shrink before his eyes. "No! Martin, you would not!"

The sound of the shot had a peculiar flat quality. Its echoes were immediately swallowed up in the rumble of thunder from overhead.

They got him out of bed shortly after eight the next morning. The one with the heavy jaw identified himself as Lieutenant Willis from the homicide department. Martin never did learn the thin one's name.

With complete disregard of protests, Willis combed the apartment. And when the briefcase was brought to light from beneath a pile of shirts in a dresser drawer, the lieutenant expressed satisfaction but no surprise.

"In this town, when any guest of a big hotel checks out with baggage, the attendant who helps him into a cab or car or bus, always makes a record of the vehicle's license number. In that way, if their guest leaves some article in the car the hotel is able to recover it for the owner."

"From papers Merkooff carried, we learned what hotel he had been staying at. The hotel supplied the license number of the car that picked him up."

"And that's your answer, Reynolds. A perfect crime—except for a little matter of . . . hotel service."

Married Atlanta School Teachers Given Furloughs

Value of Normal Family Life to Education Is Recognized

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Before and after Mrs. Myers and I addressed the elementary teachers of Atlanta, Georgia, last winter, we noticed that many of them were mentioned as "Mrs." So and So. Later I asked Dr. Willis Sutton, the superintendent of schools there, about it, and the following is what he told me:

"We have never felt that whether a teacher was married or single, rich or poor, lived in one section or the other, should be the determining factor as to who should teach our children."

"We have always believed that the best teacher we could secure within the means allowed was the teacher we wanted to teach our children, whether married or single, from Kalamazoo or Atlanta. For many years we have had no regulations against employing married teachers, or that one must resign if she married. Such rules were in effect when I became superintendent, and we lost some of our best teachers. That is the reason I had it changed."

"We encourage our teachers to

WHAT IS U.S. GOOD BEEF?

Beef possesses an unusually wide range in quality and, unfortunately, the retail price is not always an accurate indicator of this quality. For this reason, along with the fact that the average consumer is not a good judge of meat, the U. S. Government maintains a meat grading and stamping service, enabling consumers to select the quality beef they desire—and are paying for.

Reprinted illustration is from U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Misc. Publication No. 392 "Buying Beef by Grade." Copies of entire booklet may be obtained by writing Agricultural Marketing Service, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

All American Stores and Acme Super Markets are selling Government Graded and Stamped "U. S. Good" Beef. In the reprinted illustration above, the U. S. Department of Agriculture describes the grade stampings and in its booklet says, "It is the highest grade of beef sold in volume throughout the year in practically all of the main beef-consuming centers." The characteristics of the lean, the quantity, distribution and characteristics of the fat, and the proportion of edible meat to bone are the principal factors the experts consider for selecting "U. S. Good" Beef.

By purchasing this quality beef at your American Store or Acme Super Market you take the guess-work out of your beef buying, and what is more, you'll be pleased to note it is priced no higher than ordinary un-graded beef!

have families by granting three years maternity leave. A place is reserved for such teachers if they wish to return at the end of three years, provided they have taken one summer course and are in good health. If one has a second child, the maternity leave is simply extended.

"We require that a teacher approaching maternity shall leave the classrooms six months before the birth of the child. We believe that a mother is needed with a small child, and that nothing should interfere with her proper rearing of the child. We fear that if these months before the child is born were put in at hard work, that would be detrimental to the child about to come into the world."

May Return Earlier

"We also have a provision that in case of the loss of a child within the term of the leave of absence, the superintendent may, at his discretion, recommend the reinstatement of said employee before the expiration of the leave of absence, subject to the approval of the board."

This practice of the schools of Atlanta in relation to the family life of teachers strikes me as wholly sensible. Yet Atlanta is the only city nearly its size, so far as I can learn, that so recognizes the value of normal family life in connection with its public education.

Solving Parent Problems

"My husband and I have no baby, but we hope we shall eventually. We want to read books about bringing up a baby well, and wish you would recommend some books for us to read. A three-cent stamp on a self-addressed envelope is enclosed."

A. A selected list of books and pamphlets was sent to her, gladly.

Of a total production of 1,038,668 shotguns reported to the Census Bureau by the firearms industry in the last two centuries of manufacture, 197,241 were double-barreled, and 841,427 were single-barreled, including automatic, repeating, and single shot.

Here's a Good Recipe for Apple Cake

With apples so plentiful this fall, every family should enjoy this treat. The ingredients needed include: One-and-a-half cups thinly sliced apples, two-and-a-half cups flour, three-fourths cup molasses, one-half cup hot water, one-third cup shortening.

one-half cup sugar, one-and-a-half cup sugar, one-and-a-half teaspoons soda, one teaspoon cinnamon, and one-fourth teaspoon each of nutmeg and salt.

Cook apples slowly in molasses until tender, then cool. Melt shortening in hot water. Sift dry ingredients together and gradually add hot water mixture, stirring constantly to keep smooth. Next stir in apples, pour in greased pan and bake half an hour in moderate oven. Serve plain or with suitable topping.

Extra Tidbits for the Thanksgiving Dinner

BRILLIANT red cranberry dishes sharpen the appetite.

By MRS. LOUISE B. WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

Although Thanksgiving dinners usually follow tradition and family preferences, your dinner can be made attractively individual by introducing extra tidbits and a new twist here and there.

GRAPEFRUIT MOLD, a tart appetizer, gets the meal off to a refreshing start. It is inexpensive, can be prepared a day in advance and goes well with turkey, chicken or meat. Dissolve a package of lemon gelatin in 1½ cups boiling water. Add 3 tablespoons lemon juice and chill. When slightly thick, mix in 1 cup sliced grapefruit, ½ cup diced pineapple, 1 tablespoon chopped candied ginger, ¼ teaspoon salt. Pour into individual mold and chill. Unmold and top with salad dressing including a tablespoon of finely chopped sweet pickles for cup of dressing.

FRUIT-MINT SAUCE will do lots for a simple fruit cocktail or sliced or halved fruits served as appetizers. To serve 6 or 7 mix together ½ cup orange, ¼ cup pineapple and 2 tablespoons lemon juices, ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon oil of peppermint. Chill covered. Shake well and pour over fruits. Garnish with halves of sugared kumquats or seeded red or green grapes. If oysters are a must for this Thanksgiving feast, here is a 1941 version: Bake 4 small acorn squash in halves for 45 minutes in moderate oven. Stuff with escalloped oysters. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven.

For a change, switch the chopped cooked giblets from the gravy to the stuffing for fowl and put diced cooked chestnuts into hot gravy before serving.

Mashed sweet potatoes, lightly scented with ginger and mace and roughly piled on glazed thick orange slices or browned pineapple rings make colorful meat or fowl platter garnishes.

FRUIT SLAW takes care of the salad course. Add cubed apricots, diced apples and broken nuts to your favorite slaw recipe.

If you want a new harvest salad, try STUFFED DATES SUPREME: Wash and seed large dates, spread with a mixture of white cream cheese, finely diced celery and drained crushed pineapple. Roll dates and chill. Arrange spoke fashion on crisp salad green. Center with figs and French dressing.

Special dessert tricks: Orange sauce makes a delicious covering for baked or steamed cranberry pudding and grapes, seeded and stuffed with Roquefort cheese are grand on the dessert cheese tray. Lime sherbet piled on top of rounds of sponge cake is not too heavy for a holiday meal finale.

Sweet Potato Croquets Are Appealing

Here is an appetizing change from the usual sweet potato dish: Ingredients: Three pounds of light yellow sweet potatoes, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon butter, one-fourth pound shelled pecans, one egg, one tablespoon milk, one and one-half cups fine cracker crumbs, and a dash of nutmeg. (Smaller quantities for small families.) Directions: Boil sweet potatoes in water salted with teaspoon salt. When cooked, peel, mash and add butter, pecans (chopped), and nutmeg. When cold, shape into small oblong croquettes and dip in beaten egg to which milk has been added. Then dip in cracker crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Tips for Using Extracts in Pairs

Pairs of extracts have interesting flavor powers for some of the staple dishes. Here are some tips for immediate use: Put vanilla and almond extracts in chocolate cookies, cakes or puddings, add lemon and orange to hard sauce for fruit or nut puddings and mix black walnut with vanilla for stepping up hard or liquid sauce accompanying the favorite "betty" family, cottage or gelatin desserts.

Save That Fat

After trying doughnuts, strain the fat. It can be used over again. Cool it slightly and pour through a coarse meshed white cloth, fitted over a strainer placed on top of a jar or small pail. This removes any burned particles. Cool the fat, cover, and store in the refrigerator. It will keep a month.

This method benefits the dairy farmer by helping him take care of the higher cost of feed and other items necessary to produce quality milk. It gives the farmer a straight price increase, while you, the consumer, pay no more for your milk; and the dairies, in turn, are protected against the loss caused by bottles not being returned.

SOME WORTHWHILE CULINARY HINTS

Apples roasted, cored, and baked in pineapple juice until tender are delicious.

Try stuffing halves of baked acorn squash with mixture of sausage meat and bread crumbs.

It takes less sugar for stewed apples if sugar is added after cooking.

An easy way to coat doughnuts with sugar is to place them in a paper sack with powdered sugar. Shaking the bag will do the rest.

A teaspoon of baking powder in the water in which meat or vegetables are cooked will help keep them tender.

Arrange pans in the oven so that they do not touch each other.

DICK TRACY—Speak Man

FLASH GORDON — In The New World War

A Maid in Manhattan by ALLEN EPPES

SYNOPSIS
FRED MOSHER, up-and-coming young real estate dealer in a southern town, long has been the suitor of SUSAN FARMER, who has rejected all his proposals because she feels that she has the duty of replenishing the family fortune for her aunt.
MISS ALICE FARMER, who lives with Susan on the family plantation.
ROY LEONARD, inspired by the memory of a farm girl he met when he was 16, is the young advertising man who gets the idea of a contest to find the "typical farmer's daughter." He is engaged to marry IRENE CARTER, secretary to the head of the company.
YESTERDAY: The letter is sent to Susan telling her that she has been chosen as "Miss Typical Farmer's Daughter."
CHAPTER EIGHT
SUSAN was showing Fred Mosher around the Farmer plantation.
"As though I hadn't been seeing it ever since I can remember," said Fred.
"Yes, I know," said Susan. "But I'm now trying to make you see it through my eyes—through Aunt Alice's; so you won't go on thinking we're crazy for wanting to do something with it."
"All right, all right," Fred said. "And then I want to show YOU a house."
"What sort of house?" Susan asked.
"One built just for us—out on Magnolia Lane."
"Now, listen, Fred, please don't start that all over again," Susan begged.
Fred took her hand, smiled at her.
"Since you've had no reply to the letter you sent in that cock-eyed contest," he said, "I thought you might be ready to start considering me—and marriage."
"There's plenty of time to think to decide a contest," said Susan.
"Maybe so. But I've an idea they'd already made their choice before you sent in your picture and letter. After all, the contest was nearly over before you heard about it."
"You may be right—but I'll hope a little longer," Fred chuckled. "I'll bet everyone connected with Dainty Diana Dairies practically died laughing when they got a peep at that picture of you."
"Oh, yes?"
"You know it was funny, Susan. So why not be honest?"
"I don't know it was funny. It was cute, I thought."
"Especially Esmeralda. Good lord, the look on her face!"
"What was wrong with Esmeralda's look?"
"Plenty."
"And mine, too, I suppose."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"
WHY FEAR FOUR-CARDERS?
IT HAS become a fetish with some advanced students of bidding to refrain from bidding four-card major suits on the first round. A dealer will start with a three-card minor suit instead, or even a two-card minor upon occasion. His partner will not re-spond on the first round with a major suit unless it is of at least five cards. The theory of all this is that it keeps the bidding low. Most assuredly, it does that sometimes, but it also keeps their score lower than it otherwise should be, if they carry it to the extreme.

Health of Uncle Sam's New Draft Army Excellent, Statistics Show

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
During the last year I have come to know exactly how the old soldier with his fund of reminiscences and anecdotes feels. There must be a lot of us veterans of 1917 sitting around on cracker barrels and telling whomever they can get to listen about the mistakes of the present strategy and about how the war ought to be run. I only know it from the medical standpoint, but I take a childish interest in going around in the army hospitals and talking to the present crop of army doctors and finding out what the sick reports show.
I must say they are either doing a good deal better, or they are having better luck than we did.
The latest statistical report from the surgeon-general's office shows that the new draft army is in excellent health. The total rate of admission to sick report for disease from the period of April, 1941, to August, 1941, has run appreciably lower than in the corresponding period of 1918. This report is even more favorable when we consider that military training now makes greater physical demands than a generation ago.
Death Rate
The best general index of army health is the death rate. This has been under one per 1,000 per year in every month from November, 1940, to May 1941, the last date for which mortality figures are available. For the corresponding period of 1917-1918, the death rate was ten per 1,000.
The extraordinary thing to me is the small number of cases of contagious disease. For instance in World War I, we often had regiments, indeed whole camps, completely out of commission on account of measles.
In November, 1917, the number of cases of measles was 240 per 1,000. In March, the measles rate in the new army was fifty-seven per 1,000 and more recently, one per 1,000. We always had mumps—sometimes as many as 200 per 1,000, while in the new army the rate is under five per 1,000.
Meningitis
Epidemic meningitis was always present in World War I and there have been an average of about three cases a week in 1941 (whole army). The death rate for meningitis has been drastically reduced in the present army largely due to better methods of treatment and earlier recognition of the disease.
Influenza and pneumonia have loomed large in the disease picture in the new army, but thanks to the prompt attention given to soldiers who make any complaint indicating these ailments the mortality has remained low. This is in sharp contrast with the epidemic of 1917-1918.
The rate of injuries is higher than in the army of World War I.

THE RINSO PEOPLE AIM TO PLEASE...
THEY'VE MADE NEW RINSO "Anti-Sneeze!"
SURE I STOP SNEEZING SPEEDS... AND DON'T FORGET YOU CAN BEAT MY SUDS FOR WHITER WASHES
RINSO GIVES RICHER SUDS IN A FLASH. ACTIVE SUDS THAT SOAK OUT DIRT IN AS LITTLE AS 10 MINUTES, YET ARE SAFE FOR ALL WASHABLE COLORS
MADGE, I HAD THE EASIEST WASHDAY EVER, THANKS TO NEW RINSO. AND JUST SEE HOW GLEAMING WHITE AND BRIGHT MY WASH IS. NO GREY OR YELLOW TINGE
I USE RINSO FOR DISHES. IT'S SPEEDY AND MILD. I NEVER ON MY HANDS
"ANTI-SNEEZE" RINSO IS 98% FREE OF SOAP-DUST
WHAT DOES THAT MEAN TO ME?
MARY: It means no cloud of pesky soap-dust when you wash clothes or dishes. And it's the irritating soap-dust that causes "washday hay-fever."
BESS: So that's why they made Rinso "Anti-Sneeze" 98% free of soap-dust!
MARY: Of course! Why, many widely used package soaps contain up to a 1/4 lb. of sneezy soap-dust. But most important, the New Rinso washes clothes up to 10 shades whiter than any one of 16 soaps tested.
BESS: Gosh, that's wonderful! And you say the New Rinso, with its "suds-booster," goes so much farther than the old that it's just like getting free soap every 5th washday? I simply must try it!

but this is to be expected on account of the greater mechanization of the present and the more extensive maneuvers the new army is having. As the men get seasoned, injury rate and death rate from injuries will undoubtedly fall.
The health record of America's new army is very gratifying up to the present.
Questions and Answers
J. C. B.: "What causes my hands to go to sleep at night causing worse pains than pins and needles? It is not lying on them. I have been awake and felt them gradually go into pain."
Answer: If you are sure it is not caused by position (the pins and needles sensation certainly sounds like nerve pressure) it is probably circulatory—perhaps anemia, perhaps spasm of the arteries (Reynaud's disease.)
Number of visitors to the United States national parks, monuments, recreational areas and military and historical areas increased twenty-six per cent during the summer travel season of 1941. Final figures show that 21,050,426 people trekked to these areas during the season.

THREE GRACES OF THE 80's

Dorothy Gish (center), Kay Lang and Toni FAVOR in the short train dresses and bustles with which women had to struggle, indoors and out, back in the horse and buggy days—the period of the Clarence Day laughing success, "Life With Father," which, with Miss Gish and Louis Calhern in the featured roles, will be presented on the stage of the Maryland theater, Monday matinee and night, December 1.

they to shed artificial getups and strip down to the essential marks of beauty," says the film star, tempering his remarks.

Boyer's comment is peculiarly timely since, in Universal's "Appointment for Love," which is currently at the Liberty theater, he enacts the role of a Broadway playwright and playboy of cafe society. It is a comedy-romance, and in it he turns his back to the night club crowd to pay romantic homage to a career girl—working girl to you. The part is portrayed by Margaret Sullivan, Boyer's co-star.

Ruth Hussey Wears Elaborate Wardrobe

Ruth Hussey wears one of the most elaborate wardrobes of her career for her new role opposite Robert Young in "Married Bachelor," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's comedy of a young couple's marital difficulties, opening tomorrow at the Maryland theater. Her gowns range from elaborate evening costumes to sports models. In all, she wears fifteen changes.

In "Married Bachelor," Young and Miss Hussey, as a young married couple, find themselves in hot water when Bob poses as a bachelor and author of a book on marriage psychology, all to pay off a debt to a gangster. But that isn't all. Lee Bowman, publisher of Young's alleged book, "The Psychology of Marriage," falls in love with Ruth and Bob doesn't have a chance to assert his rights—not with the gangster at his throat, and his bachelor status staring him in the face.

Then the feminine coterie of the country become Robert Young conscious and for a while it looks as if being a ladies' man will prove more attractive than marriage. About to lose Ruth, Bob comes to his senses, turns over the romantic problems of the nation to the true authority, Felix Bressart, and proceeds to apply some of that same marital psychology to his own life.

Actor Victor Mature Keeps His Promise

As soon as he finished "Hot Spot" at 20th Century-Fox, Victor

Mature kept a promise he made to his mother many years ago. The actor took his bride, the former Martha Stephenson Kemp, New York socialite, to his home at Louisville, Kentucky, to visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Mature.

Vic, who played opposite Betty Grable and Carole Landis in "Hot Spot," the current film at the Strand theater, gave a solemn oath to his mother when he was 15 years old that when he married, he and his wife would spend at least one week of every year with his parents.

Because his father and mother had never met his wife in person, Mature decided to make the visit at once. The newlyweds flew from Hollywood to Louisville in order to save time as Vic had another picture scheduled to start very shortly after the completion of "Hot Spot."

Skelton Wins Stardom In Mystery Comedy

Comedy, thrills, and more comedy mingle with romance in "Whistling in the Dark," in which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer brings its new comedy star, Red Skelton, to the screen. It comes tomorrow to the Embassy theater.

Skelton, after a notable career on stage and radio, recently came to pictures, and was the comedy high spot of "The People vs. Dr. Kildare" and other recent pictures. He is teamed with Ann Rutherford, Mickey Rooney's sweetheart of the Hardy Family series.

He plays a "crime creator," inventing crimes for detective dramas

HOW TO CRACK SUSPECT

One of the best methods of cracking a suspect is to torture them mentally, according to Laird Cregar, who plays the detective in the new 20th Century-Fox hit, "Hot Spot." Vic Mature is his intended victim—but Betty Grable and Carole Landis have a hand in the outcome.

on a radio broadcast. A mystery vents a "twist" to make it unsuccessful, and in an amazing flight of ingenuity, gets police aid and captures the gang.

Complications become hilarious as he "invents" the crime, then invents a "twist" to make it unsuccessful, and in an amazing flight of ingenuity, gets police aid and captures the gang.

Elliott Western At Garden Today

"The Return of Daniel Boone," a western starring Bill Elliott, is the main feature at the Garden today. Crammed with action, the picture is said to be one of the best films the popular star has ever made, and he is ably assisted by Betty Miles and Dub Taylor.

The co-feature is "The Lone Wolf Takes a Chance," a mystery thriller starring Warren William, with Eric Blore and June Storey in supporting roles. Chapter No. 13 of "The Green Hornet Strikes Again," the well liked serial, is also on the Garden program.

Glamour Debunked By Charles Boyer

There is more glamour behind typewriters and department store counters, than there is in the so-called glamour belt of the night clubs.

If that's startling, consider the source. The statement is a summation of comment by Charles Boyer, film star and generally conceded the privilege of speaking authoritatively on matters concerning "wine, women and song."

Says Boyer: "The glamour girls of the night club belt are almost wholly a figment of press agents' imagination. They're artificial—in many instances actually grotesque concoctions turned out by expensive beauty shops and theatrically-minded dressmakers."

In fact, many of these so-called glamour purveyors would be less sensational, perhaps, but certainly more interestingly captivating were

Salvation Army To Collect Toys For Christmas

Repairs Will Again Be Made by South End and West Side Firemen

With Christmas just around the corner, members of the local Salvation Army corps are preparing for their annual distribution of toys to needy children.

Brig. Brice L. Phillipson, commanding officer of the local corps announced last evening that men of the South End and West Side Fire Companies will again aid in repairing and painting toys that are donated and requests persons who have toys that have been discarded by their children, either to bring them to the citadel or to telephone 2001 and have army workers call at their home.

The firemen will begin work Monday when the first load of toys will be sent by the Salvation Army and will continue repairing toys until December, for this reason Brig. Phillipson would like to receive the toys immediately.

Last year approximately 500 children were paid a visit by Santa Claus through the work of the Salvation Army and given between 800 and 900 toys according to Brig. Phillipson.

The toys are distributed through a store at the citadel where they are displayed and parents are permitted to make their own selections. The Army expects to distribute about 1,000 toys this year and is making a special appeal to the people of Cumberland to aid in this work, by sending toys, that are not being used, to have them repaired in time for Christmas.

J. F. KITZMILLER IS FOUND DEAD AT HOME IN BLAINE, W. VA.

John F. Kitzmiller, 60, Blaine, W. Va., was found dead in bed at his home yesterday by his nephew Lawrence Kitzmiller, Elk Garden, and Sheriff F. G. Davis, Mineral county.

Lawrence went to the home of his uncle, who lives alone about 5:15 o'clock to take him to a physician in Westport for treatment for high blood pressure and heart trouble from which he has been suffering for the past year and could not gain entrance.

He immediately returned to Elk Garden and summoned Sheriff Davis. Together they returned to the home and forced entrance. After examining the body Sheriff Davis said he pronounced death due to natural causes and had the body removed to the Sharples funeral home without calling the county investigator. He said Kitzmiller had been dead about two days.

Mr. Kitzmiller is survived by one brother, Charles Kitzmiller, Mt. Storm; one sister, Mrs. John Phillips, McCoolle, and two nephews, Lawrence and Hernon Kitzmiller, both of Elk Garden.

The body will remain at the Sharples funeral home where services will be held Sunday afternoon.

Seven-acre Forest Fire on Stony Run Is Extinguished

A seven-acre forest fire on Stony Run, near Westport, was extinguished by the local warden and crew yesterday afternoon, Urner P. Wigfield, district fire warden, said last night. The blaze was caused by brush burning, he said.

A thirty-acre fire Thursday at Wildcat Gap, south of Williams road and a blaze of six acres at the foot of Martin's mountain, near Twiggton, were being "mopped up" yesterday, Wigfield added.

Due to the extended drought and dryness of the forest Wigfield asked hunters and farmers to be extremely careful while in the woods.

Producers

dairies. Little progress has been made. Taking the bull by the horns, the producers' association has set what it considers a reasonable price for milk.

Must Meet Rising Costs
This price, according to the association, will enable producers to meet the rising cost of production, and meet the strenuous demands of national defense which has called for increased milk production.

The association stated that milk producers will continue to ship milk to dairies who accept the price set by the producers' association. Dairies receiving forty-six quarts of milk for every hundred pounds of milk shipped, receive thirteen cents a quart for milk and pay the producers 5.95 cents a quart. The producer is asking for a price of close to six and a half cents a quart, a slight increase.

The Tri-State association announces that it will do all in its power to see that the consumer is not hurt by any action taken by the dairies if the dairies reject the producers' price notice.

THREE VIRGINIA BRIDGES WILL BE DEDICATED MONDAY

FRONT ROYAL, Va., Nov. 14, 1941—Pictured above are the three Front Royal-Riverton Bridges—the largest bridge project ever undertaken in Virginia, by the State Highway Department. The cost was in excess of $1,800,000. This two mile monument to modern highway skill, over the north and south branches of the Shenandoah river and Crooked Run, will be dedicated by Governor Price of Virginia, starting at noon, Monday, November 17.

TOP LEFT: A broadside of the South branch of the Shenandoah river, showing many of the Riverton homes. Here is found excellent ice-skating, which is enjoyed by Northern Virginians. BOTTOM LEFT: The smallest of the three bridges, over Crooked Run, which is Shenandoah river tributary. SMALL INSERT: The old Shenandoah River Bridge, which was erected in 1894, is now being demolished.

This celebration will be concluded by band concerts, military drills and other public entertainment.

MURPHY'S SETS PACE WITH INITIAL YULE DISPLAY OF SEASON

The Yuletide spirit made an auspicious debut in Cumberland this week at the G. C. Murphy Company store, the front of which is tastefully decorated in laurel and colored lights appropriate to the approaching season.

There is Santa Claus riding in a sleigh drawn by four of his reindeer and, set off in lights which extend ninety-six feet across the ledge on the second floor are the words "Season's Greetings." On each end of the ledge appears a Chinese design Christmas tree.

The attractive display was arranged by employees of the store under the direction of Ralph G. James, district manager.

Santa Claus, the reindeer and trees were built here and are made of tin and plywood. The front of the building is decorated with 420 feet of laurel roping and 314 red, green, blue and white electric bulbs, seventy-five per cent of which are seven and one-half watts and the remainder thirty watts.

When asked the names of the reindeer appearing in the display, Harry G. Williams, assistant manager, he was able to recognize Dasher, Dancer, Prancer, Vixen, Donner and Blitzen. The services of Comet and Cupid were not needed, he added.

Deffenbaugh stated that a police escort will also be provided when the company returns here Tuesday morning about 9 o'clock on its way back to the Aberdeen Proving Grounds.

The company is on its way to Morgantown, W. Va., where Defense day will be celebrated November 17 in connection with the opening of the new ordnance works. Plans are made for stopping here as the company is on its way back to the Aberdeen proving grounds.

Maltas Initiate Six Candidates

Members Asked To Pledge Anew Allegiance to Church of Choice

Conferring of the Malta degree on six candidates was exemplified last evening by J. A. Wiant, air knight commander, and P. I. Diehl, assistant degree master, at a ceremony held in the Knights of Malta temple, Prospect square, by Star of the East Commandery No. 461.

Following the exercises refreshments were served.

The order of Malta of the jurisdiction of Pennsylvania, which also includes commanderies in Hagerstown, Frostburg, Cumberland and Baltimore, is now conducting a campaign in which every member is called upon by selected committees and asked to pledge anew their allegiance to the church of their choice, pledging not only a faithful and regular attendance, but generous and systematic financial contributions to maintenance of the church and the furtherance of the work to which it is committed.

At the conclusion of the canvass which is being undertaken in each locality, the pledge cards secured by the order will be separated according to church preference designated on them and will be delivered to the pastors of the churches that are named.

In conducting this campaign the Order of Malta believes that one of the most practical ways in which the order can fulfill destiny and emulate the example of its ancient founders is to arouse a militant church to the need of greater cooperation in government, and stronger and more sincere professions of faith.

communities. Other units to be organized would be bomb squads, nurses aids, with Mrs. A. M. Lichtenstein, chairman; canteen, of which Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum has been appointed chairman; housing and rehabilitation; messenger with E. A. Cosgrove of the Motorcycle club organizing the Western Union and Postal boys; a decontamination corps, with Dr. Theodore R. Shrop as chairman and the motor squad sponsored by the junior chamber of commerce organizing the teamsters and chauffeurs.

State Officials Coming

In closing the speaker offered his assistance to Miss Elizabeth Lowndes, chairman of the women's division and said Lieut. Col. Barrett and Isaac George would be in Frostburg next Friday to organize classes to teach the men how to handle bombs and extinguish them.

Mrs. Lichtenstein reported on the nursing units, and stated the requirements, namely, a graduate of a high school, teaching ability and be a registered nurse. Mrs. Lichtenstein said classes have been organized in the Cresaptown high school under the direction of Mrs. Neia Woods, with Cresaptown paying the expenses and the school donating the use of its health center. She reported two classes are being given in the Red Cross room in the city hall by Mrs. Catherine P. Stump, with eleven women enrolled in the Tuesday evening class and fourteen in the Wednesday evening class, the Red Cross has full equipment for the classes and they prefer holding them there.

The Grace Methodist church is supplying the equipment and teacher for a class of twenty-eight and has another class ready to begin Monday. Plans are being made to organize a group in Bowman's addition. Mrs. Lichtenstein also explained organization of the graduate nurses in the first and second defense. The first being subject to call anywhere, the second in their own district. Mrs. Lichtenstein stressed the fact that the Red Cross will be called first in any disaster, and used the recent North Centre street explosion as an example.

Mrs. Harry Flook, chairman of the knitting unit, reported over 150 sweaters have been knitted and sent to Company G and the unit had bought most of the yarn.

More Food Is Needed

Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Lonaconing, chairman of agriculture, presented a ten point program based on agricultural economics: food production and conservation including farm gardens and preserving; poultry; dairying; horticulture; small fruits; soil erosion; disease and insect control; feed pasture and crop rotation; forestry farm and home management. She stressed the request for 14,000 gardens in Allegany county to grow enough fresh vegetables for family use instead of having flower gardens. Allegany county was also requested to produce more eggs, milk, chickens, pork and tomatoes, the latter especially for use in air raid shelters where water is expected to be bad.

Miss Margaret Loar, assistant county home demonstration agent, reported for Miss Maude A. Bean, consumer, nutrition and conservation chairman, who was unable to attend. Miss Loar reported the objectives of the unit are to "co-operate with other county organizations in reaching every person in Maryland with the fundamental principles underlying good nutrition; to improve food habits; and to help develop among farm people a home production program, which includes production, conservation and consumption that will meet the nutritional needs of their families and provide a surplus for others."

Miss Loar spoke briefly of the "food for freedom" program in the 4-H clubs throughout the country co-operating with home economic teachers and school lunch chairmen endeavoring to have more people eat the right kind of food and stressing protective foods, as eggs, fruits, fresh vegetables and milk.

Mrs. S. A. Boucher, Barton, Americanization chairman, reported she would have the qualifications necessary for citizenship published, also the National Anthem and the pledge of allegiance published, she warned of a dozen or more un-American magazines being sold throughout the country and asked any one finding any such magazines report to her and she would endeavor to abolish them from the news stands and book stores. She also urged a scrutiny of literature read by children.

Other members attending were Miss Ann Sloan, Lonaconing; Miss Evelyn Miller, Mrs. W. L. Madocks, Mrs. Margaret Couehian and Mrs. Richard T. Lowndes. The next meeting will be held at 2 o'clock, December 11, in the Library.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 14 (AP)—Aldo (Buff) Donelli today officially resumed his job as coach of the undefeated Duquesne University Dukes after a five week's fling as coach on the professional Pittsburgh Steelers.

Donelli hustled his squad through a brief practice, designed chiefly to work out the kinks from the roundtrip to San Francisco and then held a skill practice for Saturday's clash with undefeated Mississippi State.

Irish Will Face Northwestern At Evanston

Mc're Dame Must Win To Keep Record Clear for Season

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 14 (AP)—Two of the high ranking teams in the nation — Notre Dame and Northwestern — come together before 46,000 fans tomorrow. With Notre Dame's chances for its first undefeated season in eleven years riding on the outcome.

The Irish, who'll wind up their schedule a week hence against a mediocre Southern California eleven, will enter the tilt a slight favorite. Thousands of fans are pulling for the Irish to roll on to their first unbeaten record since Knute Rockne's last team did it in 1930.

The other reason and a more solid one is the pitching mack in the arm of sophomore Angelo Bertelli, who has completed 52 of 89 passes for 613 yards.

The only game in which Bertelli's aerial attack grounded this fall was that scoreless tie in the mud with Army. The forecast for tomorrow indicates a dry field.

Northwestern, however, has a passer of note in sophomore Otto Graham. The Wildcats, losers of eleven games to Michigan and Minnesota, also have a dangerous breakaway runner in Bill DeCorcoran, who almost single-handedly whipped the Irish 20-0 last year.

The ticket hunt for this battle was the most intense of the season, with loop brokers reported to be getting from $10 to $17 for seats on the 10-yard line.

Eeale's death was the second attributed to football injuries in New Jersey this fall.

metal to junk dealers and sell it at the prevailing price.

McHenry declared that it is likely that a sizeable amount of scrap metal could be obtained by this method, since discarded implements are to be found on many farms.

Whole-hearted co-operation by farmers of Allegany county in the federal government's "food for defense" program is indicated by an analysis of the first reports of the county-wide survey being made, according to County Farm Agent Ralph P. McHenry.

McHenry said that out of a total of 1,010 farms, proprietors of 161 have been contacted by the committee appointed to survey the possibilities of stepping up production of certain items, and the results to date have been "encouraging."

The farmers interviewed so far, the county agent reported, have agreed to raise 12,358 chickens next year, a better than twenty-one per cent jump over the 8,296 raised this year. The goal set up for this county is twenty per cent.

In the allied poultry product of eggs they promised to produce 58,474 dozens, an increase of 25.5 per cent over this year's 41,989. The ducks, Miss Margaret Couehian, called for an increase of only ten per cent in eggs. The farmers have gone on record to raise 662 hogs, comparing with 445 this year, an increase of 25.5 per cent.

The remainder of the county's farming population will be contacted during this month. While not complete, McHenry says that the report on the first hundred farms is a fair example of the spirit of co-operation prevalent among farmers to strengthen the fitness of America with more food.

Thomas Sparks Hahn's Gridmen In Final Clash

Both Teams Pile Up Yardage as Sparkling Runs Feature

Ridgeley high's football team, with Pullback Jim Thomas providing the spark, rolled to a 20-14 victory over LaSalle's Explorers before a crowd estimated at 2,000 last night at the Port Hill stadium.

It was the final game of the season for Coach Bill Hahn's Ridgeleyites and the West Virginians pounded out a well-earned victory. The contest was filled with sparkling runs with both teams going over the 200-yard mark in ground gained.

Thomas was unquestionably the classiest back on the field. In addition to accounting for half of Ridgeley's yardage overland, Thomas scored one touchdown, passed to Clarence Hartman for another and plunged both of the West Virginians' extra points.

The hard-driving Ridgeley fullback, who personally accounted for 148 yards, drove across for the first touchdown of the game late in the first stanza and then added the point. His plunge through left tackle on a fake reverse from five yards out climaxed a forty-three yard march during which Ridgeley counted first downs on the thirty-three, eighteen and eight, Thomas contributed thirty-five of the forty-three yards.

Seefeld Makes Nice Run

LaSalle received the opening kickoff and after George Geatz made twenty-three yards at right tackle, George Greeny fumbled and Dick Arrington, Ridgeley center, recovered on his thirty-four. The Hahnmen moved to the LaSalle thirty-three before Thomas kicked over the goal. LaSalle attempted two plays before Johnny Small booted to the Ridgeley forty-four with Bob Washabaugh returning to the LaSalle forty-three to set up the first tally.

LaSalle knotted the figures midway in the second chapter. Taking the ball on their own ten, the Explorers advanced to the Ridgeley thirty-nine as Bob Seefeld got away for thirty-five yards in opening the series of plays. On fourth down with five yards to go, George Geatz angled out a nice boot on the Ridgeley six-inch line and Thomas punted to the Ridgeley twenty-two with Seefeld returning to the eighteen.

On the first play, Geatz hit right tackle and cut back for a touchdown and Phil Minke tied the score from placement.

Ridgeley Attack Clicks

Ridgeley's attack continued to click at the start of the second half after LaSalle kicked to the West Virginians' eighteen with Thomas returning to the thirty-four.

Making first downs on the LaSalle forty-nine, thirty-nine, twenty-eight and fourteen, the Hahnmen were finally stopped on the four when Thomas fumbled on third down and LaSalle recovered. Small punted on first down to his fifteen and after the Explorers had drawn a penalty, Washabaugh cut through right tackle for eight yards and the second Ridgeley score. Thomas again plunged the point from fake placement formation.

With Geatz getting away for forty-six yards before being hit by Washabaugh, LaSalle threatened early in the final period but a fumble by Geatz on the Ridgeley eight was recovered by Ridgeley's Ed Bean.

An intercepted pass by Thomas midway in the heat on the Ridgeley thirty-two and a nineteen-yard return set up the winners' final counter. With Washabaugh, Bill Bennett and Thomas alternating, Ridgeley moved to the nine where Thomas tossed a short pass to Ed Clarence Hartman for the touchdown. Thomas was stopped on the try for point.

Hartman Scores

LaSalle took to the air after the kickoff and managed to cross the Ridgeley goal. Taking over on their forty-two, the Explorers made a first on the Ridgeley forty when Geatz passed to Small for eighteen yards. Geatz made nine at right tackle and then heaved to Small for a first on the eleven. The touchdown play, which was a beauty, followed. Geatz threw the ball into the Ridgeley end zone and Hartman, after the ball had been juggled momentarily by a Ridgeley player, snatched the leather out of the air for the score. Minke again added the point from placement, and the game ended soon after the kickoff.

Ridgeley registered sixteen first downs to LaSalle's nine, gained 295 yards overland to the Explorers' 205, completed one of three passes for nine yards. Thomas' 148 yards for fifty-eight yards and lost four yards from scrimmage to the Blue and Gold's fourteen. Penalties were twenty yards against Ridgeley and fifteen against LaSalle. The lineups:

Experimenters Find Penny Best Pigskin Prophet

Hit Seven Winners in Ten -- Lose Nine on "Scientific Parlay"

By ROMNEY WHEELER

ATLANTA, Nov. 14 (AP) — At last it can be told. This business of picking Saturday football winners is just as simple as flipping a coin.

In the interest of pure science—and because they hadn't won a gridiron pool all season anyway—four anonymous experimenters locked themselves in a bare room with nothing but a coin, two football cards and a half-dozen cheese sandwiches.

First the experts picked a card by scientific projection of infinite possibilities. They weighed such mighty factors as potential power, probable penalties, and whether pigs have wings. They gave points and took points, wound up with a "sure thing" card with such selections as Fordham over Pittsburgh, with Pitt gaining twenty points; Texas (minus twenty-seven) over Baylor, Army over Harvard and Navy over Notre Dame.

As a last minute gamble, they projected their projections to the point of predicting an upset of favored Tulane by Alabama. This was fortunate because of the entire ten-game card that was the only winner.

When they took the other card, and gravely flipped a penny. The coin asked no favors and received none. Right down the card it went, picking Holy Cross over Brown, Washington over California, Michigan State (plus six) over Purdue, Iowa (less six points) over Illinois, Marquette (plus six) over Detroit, and Mississippi State (less six) over Auburn.

Everything would have been just dandy if the experiment had stopped right there. The card, if played, would have yielded 20 for 1. But four more pickets would make the odds 101 to 1, and besides there were some sandwiches left. The coin took Princeton (plus seven) over Dartmouth — and there went the parlay.

The next toss was Columbia (plus seven) over Penn, a winner, but the last two were bobbles when the spin came up South Carolina (less seven) over Kansas, and Arkansas (plus seven) over Rice.

Western Maryland Freshmen Win

WESTMINSTER, Md., Nov. 14 (AP) — Western Maryland's Freshmen football team wound up its season undefeated today by bowling over Bulls Prep of Washington 20-to-7.

The Washingtonians led 7-6 at half time, and held the Terror Frosh scoreless for the third period until Coach Rip Engle sent his first team back in.

Then Miller, Terror quarterback, sparked a drive down to the Bulls one-yard line, and Coffman, right half, bucked it over. Blanchette converted. The Terror's tallied again a few minutes later when Mandell, left half, snagged a pass down in the end zone. Blanchette again converted.

Bookies Finding Today's Battles Tough To Chart

Fordham, Texas Caused Severe Damage to "Form" Last Week

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 — The professional betting line, which, as we said recently, is about the only "form" there is in football, since the newspaper and amateur experts disagree forty ways, stood up sturdily last week in spite of three or four wicked blows to the body.

A couple of 6 to 1 shots failed—Fordham and Texas, though Texas did come out of the crucible with a tie and the consolation of having outplayed Baylor. Fordham had no excuses, being outshout as well as outscored.

Severe Damage to Form

Little money changed hands on those games, but they did severe damage to the "form," as such. So did the Syracuse-Penn State game, wherein Syracuse, the 2-to-1 favorite, was beaten.

Two other favorites, Army and Tulane, went down, but the advance odds in those cases were very tight for November, meaning that the bookmakers knew they had reason to fear Harvard and Alabama.

On the whole, it was a "formful" weekend. This week's program looks tougher to your correspondent, with nearly a dozen close ones, as follows: Notre Dame-Northwestern, Missouri-Oklahoma, Arkansas-S.M.U., Purdue-Wisconsin, California-Oregon State, Yale-Princeton, Michigan State-Temple, Syracuse-Colgate, Nebraska-Pittsburgh, LSU-Auburn, and Duquesne-Mississippi State.

Michigan 5 to 1 over Columbia. However, the bookmakers are committed to action in tough weeks as well as fat ones, and here is the final line. Check it while the returns come in:

Duquesne 8-5 over Mississippi State.

Michigan 5-1 over Columbia. Tulane 10-1 over N.Y.U. Cornell 7-2 over Dartmouth. Princeton 6-5 over Yale. Syracuse 7-5 over Colgate. Penn 7-2 over Army.

Harvard 5-1 over Brown. Holy Cross 4-1 over Manhattan. Alabama 4-1 over Georgia Tech. L.S.U. 7-5 over Auburn. Northwestern-Notre Dame, even. Wisconsin 8-5 over Purdue. Ohio State 5-1 over Illinois. Michigan State 6-5 over Temple. Missouri 9-2 over Iowa. Nebraska 3-2 over Pittsburgh. Kansas State 4-1 over Kansas. Texas 7-1 over Texas Christian. Texas A. and M. 7-2 over Rice. Arkansas 7-5 over S.M.U. Oregon State 7-5 over California. Stanford 4-1 over Washington State.

Santa Clara 8-5 over St. Mary's (Sunday).

Remember, in the case of a seemingly outrageous overlay like "Michigan 5-1 over Columbia," the bookmakers do not mean the odds to represent their idea of the score. In a straight bet, where points do not enter the issue, the score can be as close as two fingers for all they care. They simply are sure Michigan will beat Columbia, by hook or crook, and if an offer of 5 to 1 will lure the Columbia money, they gladly offer 5 to 1.

Science, as you may know, has proved that three drops of a bookmaker's blood, dropped into a basin of water, will instantly cause a light layer of ice to form on top of the mixture. These gentlemen give nothing away. Because they are so conservative, their form must be considered standard, rather than the patriot's or hunch-player's form. On the other hand, they can be had. Good hunting folks.

Salsig Watched By Navy Coaches

Tackle Moved Up to Varsity To Replace Bill Pellett

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 14 (AP) — Edgar Salsig, 195-pound junior varsity tackle, was moved up to the varsity today as Navy's football squad participated in a skeleton scrimmage.

Salsig, who has impressed the coaching staff with his play in recent scrimmages, replaces Bill Pellett, now on the sidelines with injuries, in the third team line.

Vincent Anania, 186-pound guard, was dropped to the "B" squad and his place will be taken by Warren Montgomery, 205-pound end and back, who will be converted into a guard.

Clyde Siegfried, blocking back whose shoulder injury kept him out of the last two games, scrimmaged yesterday for the first time and will be ready for the Princeton game November 22.

Backfield combinations practiced blocking out opposing ends and tackles at today's scrimmage. The squad will not practice tomorrow because the entire coaching staff

Catamounts End Campaign Today

Potomac State Faces Favored West Liberty Eleven at Keyser

KEYSER, W. Va., Nov. 14.—The Potomac State Catamounts, who have won three of eight games, will close their football season here tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 on Stayman field by meeting the strong West Liberty Hilltoppers.

The Bartlett-coached eleven, West Virginia Conference champion the past two years, is now at the top of the list, having lost but one conference tussle. Coach Dana "Horse" Lough's Cats have only an outside chance of winning but if they do, they will keep West Liberty from grabbing its third title.

The Catamounts are still feeling the effects of last week's 6-0 loss to Ithaca. Frank Hawrylak, the heaviest back on the squad, is still on crutches, while Mike Yewick, the team's sparkplug, is nursing an injured shoulder and may not see much service.

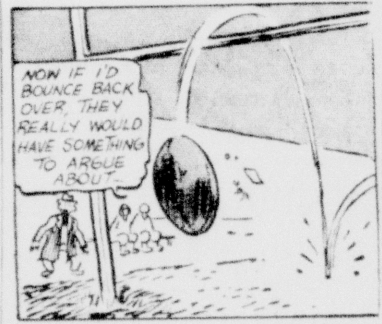

West Liberty will outweigh Potomac State about fifteen pounds to the man. However, Lough feels his boys are much better than their record indicates. Four games have been lost by one touchdown. If the local outfit gets a few breaks, Lough believes his team stands a slim chance of upsetting the Hilltoppers. The probable lineups:

A.A.U. Will Study 193 Applications For New Records

Sites for 1942 Championships Will Be Selected at Meeting

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14. (AP)—Consideration of applications for 193 new records, selection of sites for 1942 championships, and voting on numerous proposed constitutional amendments, including one pertaining to registration of men in service, promise a crowded program for the national convention of the A.A.U., opening its three-day session tomorrow.

The record applications include everything from track and field to horseshoe pitching, the tracksters leading the list with sixty-six claims. Women swimmers contribute sixty-four of the applications, and men swimmers fifty-three.

Prominent among the track and field marks up for approval are the 10.2 seconds performance of Harold Davis of the San Francisco Olympic club for the 100-meter dash; the times of 46 flat for the 400 meters and 46.4 for the 440 by Grover Klemmer, also of the Olympic club; hurdle times of 13.7 for the 110-yard and 110-meter, 22.3 for the 200-meter, and 22.5 for the 220-yard, by Fred Wilcott of Rice; Les Steers's six foot eleven inch high jump; Archie Harris's 174 foot 8 1/2 inch discus toss, and two relay records by University of California quartets.

Philadelphia Seeks Meet

Keen competition for the privilege of holding the outdoor track and field championships is promised. Philadelphia, which held it last year, again is a bidder and offers to make the guarantee attractive. Last year's meet here netted $12,000 for charity.

Dallas, Texas, also is a strong bidder, and Chicago is expected to put up a stout argument. Outdoor swimming events also enter the competitive field. Los Angeles would like both the men's and women's championships, while Seattle wants the women's, and Nenah, Wis., the men's.

Concerning service men, a proposed amendment—expected to be adopted without opposition—would relieve the soldier of the registration requirement, waive the residence rule, and eliminate the entry fee. This would apply only to an athlete competing for his military unit, however. Should he compete for a club the regular rules would be in effect.

Over 400 Expected

Another item of business of more than casual interest is a proposal, sponsored for the first time this year by the track and field committee, to make the use of yards or meters optional in championship meets.

The proposal has been brought up in various guises at previous meetings, and last year came close to being adopted. Under its new sponsorship, and with the prospect of Olympic games in the near future, the amendment seems to have a good chance of passing now.

The convention, the first day of which is given over to committee meetings, will attract about 400 delegates, alternates and committeemen.

Boni Takes Northwestern over Irish; Card Packed with Upset Possibilities

By BILL BONI

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 4 (AP) — On a college football program like tomorrow's, almost any selection you make is likely to bounce back in your face. Virtually every game renews a traditional rivalry, and tradition has a nasty habit of packing an upset punch.

Of the eight front line teams which still are undefeated, this corner looks for two to be eliminated tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 on Stayman field by meeting the strong West Liberty Hilltoppers.

The Bartlett-coached eleven, West Virginia Conference champion the past two years, is now at the top of the list, having lost but one conference tussle. Coach Dana "Horse" Lough's Cats have only an outside chance of winning but if they do, they will keep West Liberty from grabbing its third title.

Frostburg To End Soccer Campaign

Mountaineers Entertain Slippery Rock (Pa.) Outfit Today

FROSTBURG, Nov. 14.—One of the section's outstanding college soccer teams will be seen in action here tomorrow afternoon when Slippery Rock (Pa.) State Teachers' college booters come here to oppose George "Gimp" Carrington's Frostburg State soccerites.

The game, which will be part of the annual Frostburg homecoming festivities, will begin at 2 o'clock with Van Roby as referee. It will be Frostburg's final game of the season.

Last year, Slippery Rock lost a 2-1 decision to Frostburg for the Pennsylvanians only setback. With only one loss on their 1941 record, Frostburg will be out to finish the campaign with another creditable record. No Frostburg team has lost more than one game per season during the last three years and despite the presence of many rookies on the squad, the Mountaineers are confident they will close with victory.

The outcome of last week's game at Salisbury was pleasing to Coach Carrington as Frostburg's victory sewed up the Maryland teachers' college title for the locals.

Due to ankle injuries to Tom Blair and Hal Conrad, Carrington may have to shift his starting lineup although he expects both boys will see some service. If he plays, it will mark the final appearance of Conrad, a senior, who will be among draftees to report next week to Fort Meade.

Stegmaier Meal Market Robbed By Armed Bandit

Lone Gunman Takes $40 to $50 from Maurice Stegmaier

An armed robber entered the Stegmaier Meal Market, 431 North Centre street, about 9:25 o'clock last night and "stuck up" Maurice Stegmaier, the proprietor, then fled with $40 or $50 in cash.

Stegmaier, alone in the store at the time, said the man came in and stood in front of the cash register. Stegmaier walked up to wait on him when the robber suddenly drew a revolver and said, "hand over your money."

After obtaining the cash from the register, the robber fled up a side street toward the B. and O. railroad. Stegmaier immediately called police headquarters and cruiser cars and state police were warned by radio to be on the lookout.

Stegmaier, who has lived in the neighborhood all his life, said the robber was a stranger to him. He was described as being a white man, between 25 or 30 years of age, five foot, eight inches tall and weighing about 150 pounds.

Stegmaier said the man was unmasked and wore a dark suit and shirt. The robber was hatless and had no overcoat. He had wavy dark hair, Stegmaier added.

Chief of Police John Treiber, Detective Robert E. Flynn and several city officers investigated.

State police in cruiser cars scoured outlying sections for the robber. Stegmaier came to police headquarters later in attempt to pick out the robber from the police rogues gallery, but was unsuccessful.

While police were seeking the robber a call was received at headquarters in which it was stated some man had cut the telephone wire at the home of Edmund S. Burke, 737 Washington street, and attempted to gain an entrance. The Burke home was robbed last year while the family was out of town, police said.

Assistant Chief Treiber, Officer James J. Condon and Trooper First Class Harold Carl, state police, who was at the police station when the call was received investigated. State police commented there has been an outbreak of breaking and entering of roadside stands in recent nights. Officers suspect that youths are responsible as candy, ice cream and cigars were the only things taken, they added.

Five Persons Are Fined $100 Each On Liquor Charge

Two Are Acquitted and Charges against Three Are Dismissed

Five of the twelve persons arrested Thursday on charges of selling liquor without a license were fined $100 each in police court yesterday morning. Two were found not guilty, charges were dismissed against three others while the final two were asked to appear for a hearing next Wednesday.

Elizabeth Van Pelt, 111 West Elder street, and Joseph Melvin, second floor of 519 Virginia avenue, paid fines of $100 each when found guilty by Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., of charges of violating the city's ordinance regulating the sale of alcoholic beverages.

William Shepherd, 104 Thomas street; Andrew Robinson, negro, 1006 Grape alley; and Mrs. Vergie Miller, 1021 Rolling Mill alley, found guilty of the same offense were committed to the city jail in default of fines of $100 each.

Katherine Lewis, 117 West Oldtown road, and John Vanpelt, 111 West Elder street, were found not guilty of the charge.

Charges were dismissed by the city against Anne Melvin, 519 Virginia avenue; Rosetta Robinson, negro, 1006 Grape alley; and Bessie Shepherd, negro, 104 Thomas street.

Lee Carroll, 115 Lating avenue, and Van Berry, 214 Primrose avenue, will be given a hearing next Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock in police court.

Charges were dismissed Thursday by United States authorities against Leonard F. Glens, 1021 Rolling Mill alley for want of sufficient identification.

James Alfred Avirett, United States commissioner, dismissed charges against the alleged liquor law violators yesterday in pursuance of a state-wide policy of remanding to local courts for prosecution persons suspected of breaking local liquor laws.

The city ordinance regulating liquor requires no city license for sales but makes it a city offense to sell intoxicating beverages in the city without a state license.

Sellers of Cream Must Have Permit

J. Byron Dowling, city milk inspector, yesterday warned the public against purchasing cream from distributors failing to display a permit from the department of health. Dowling stated two persons selling cream were picked up yesterday by local police and were warned to refrain from the practice until they obtain a permit.

Violation under the state law calls for a penalty of from $1 to $100.

City Collects 83 Per Cent of Tax Levy in 7 Months

57 Per Cent of Appropriation Expended, Auditor's Report Shows

Eighty-three per cent of the 1941-42 tax levy for the City of Cumberland was collected during the first seven months of the fiscal year, ending October 31, according to a report issued yesterday by Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor.

The report shows that out of a total levy of $525,900, the sum of $438,972.84 has been collected, and $86,927.16 remains to be collected in the five succeeding months of the fiscal year.

Out of a total of $6,000 levied for the state income tax, the sum of $7,063.02 has been collected, or $1,063.02 in excess of the amount levied.

Police fines for the first seven months of the fiscal year amount to $3,854, or $3,846 short of the amount of the $7,500 levy.

The annual levy for 1941-42 totals $606,530, of which eighty-two per cent or $496,326.31 has been collected and $111,203.69 remains uncollected.

Fifty-seven per cent or $249,282.41, already has been expended out of an appropriation of $438,001.17 fixed for the city departments this fiscal year. This leaves a balance of $188,830.62 for the departments to work on in the eight remaining months.

Out of a total of thirty-seven accounts, only one is overdrawn and that to the amount of $111.86 for mosquito control. The annual appropriation for mosquito control is $1,000.

City Engineer Issues Home Building Permit

Rutherford Williams yesterday obtained a permit from the city engineer for the construction of a one and one-half story frame house with concrete block foundation and asphalt shingle roof at 38 Holland street. Plans were furnished by the Taylor Lumber Company and E. W. Abell is the contractor. The cost is estimated at $4,000.

A permit also was issued to F. Fisher for the construction of a frame addition to a kitchen at 833 Gephart drive. The cost of improvements is estimated at $50.

Exchange Club Would Name Nearby Mountains after Great Marylanders

C. Athey Murray appointed chairman of group to draft legislation

A bill designed to change the present names of mountains east and west of Cumberland to those of famous Marylanders as a memorial to men who accomplished outstanding deeds for the state, will be sponsored by the Cumberland Exchange Club and introduced at the 1942 session of the Maryland legislature.

Under the proposed bill such names as Polish mountain, Siding Hill, Town Hill, Keyser's Ridge, etc., would be abolished in favor of names of men who have played an outstanding part in the history of the state. Bronze plaques bearing the name of each man honored and an explanation of why he was selected will be erected on the top of each mountain, according to the plan proposed by the club.

Murray Heads Committee

C. Athey Murray, vice-president of the club, was appointed chair-

For the last time he'll be stuffed — and so will you — early this year. Thanksgiving Day will be Nov. 20 in 29 states, Nov. 27 in 18 others, both days in Montana.

Allegany County Has Cash Balance For Road Work

Counties Have More Work Underway This Year Than Last

Allegany county was one of the counties in Maryland which has a cash balance for roads and maintenance, a report of the road commission auditor shows.

County road fund balances account for $513,252.23 of the State Road Commission's aggregate cash balance of $6,444,915.58 at the end of the 1940-41 fiscal year.

The state balance is an increase of $564,829.53 over the balance for the year ending Sept. 30, 1940. Commission Auditor William A. Codd, completing his figures today for the past fiscal year, said, "We are not only in a more favorable financial position this year, but we have more work under construction."

An increase in lateral road gasoline tax funds used for county maintenance, he said, was due to greater receipts from the gasoline tax than had been anticipated. The funds this year showed deficits in only five counties, compared to nine last year, and a net balance of $230,947.31 compared to $21,622.73 last year.

Eight counties showed deficits in construction funds as against seven last year and the net balance had dropped from $747,554.16 to $282,304.92. Codd stated that this was due to the fact the counties had not awarded contracts ahead of time in 1939-40 as they had in 1940-41.

He said six of the eight counties would show favorable balances as soon as the new year's figures were taken into consideration. These counties started two-year building programs during the past year. They are: Carroll, Frederick, Prince George's, Somerset, Wicomico, and Worcester.

Funds available to the counties as of last Sept. 30 include (x-denotes deficit):

County	Lateral Gasoline Tax Funds—Maintenance	County Construction Funds
Allegany	3,020.82	686.63
Baltimore	17,588.68	6,886.32(x)

William Arthur Moore Charged with Manslaughter at Hearing

William Arthur Moore, 21, of Mexico farms, is being held under $1,000 bond for the January grand jury, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Lawrence Malampy, six-year-old schoolboy who died Thursday after he fell beneath the wheels of a school bus on Christie road.

The hearing was held in trial magistrates court yesterday afternoon at 1:25 o'clock before Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr.

Oscar Rice, Christie road, who stopped behind the school bus and saw the accident, testified that he was following the bus traveling east on Christie road near the Malampy home and that he had stopped twice behind the bus when it stopped to discharge children. Rice said that the vehicle stopped on a bridge near the Malampy home and that the door of the bus was three feet from the wall of the bridge. Five or six children, Rice said, alighted from the bus.

When the bus started, Rice said, it looked as though the Malampy child's hand was fastened to the door of the bus, and that the child ran along side the bus for fifteen or twenty feet and then broke loose and fell on the road.

Rice stated that to him it seemed as if the rear right wheel of the bus passed over the child's legs.

The distance the bus traveled before it finally stopped was estimated by Rice as between eighty and ninety yards.

Rice said that he picked the child up and drove him to Allegany hospital dispensary. The child was still breathing, Rice said, as he entered the hospital, but was pronounced dead almost immediately.

Rice said that he blew his horn as loud as he could to warn the driver of the bus.

Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy county medical examiner, the second witness, said that he was called to Allegany hospital at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Upon arrival he found that the Malampy child had been pronounced dead by Dr. A. J. Mirkin at 4 o'clock.

X-rays Are Taken

Dr. Corson, asked to describe the condition of the body, said that he had found contusion of the left ankle, a slight contusion of the right hip and left knee, but that since such injuries were insufficient to cause death that he had ordered X-rays taken of the skull and chest.

X-rays disclosed, Dr. Corson said, that the skull was not fractured, but that the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth ribs on the right side were fractured, and concluded that death probably was due to asphyxiation caused by a punctured lung.

There was no evidence, Dr. Corson added, of injury to either hand or wrist and no external marks on the child's chest.

Only two of the seven witnesses summoned by the state testified at the hearing. The state was represented by Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, and Paul M. Fletcher, assistant state's attorney.

Moore, who was represented by W. Earle Cobey, did not testify.

Allegany Farmers Promise To Raise Food for Defense

Co-operation in Increased Production Program Is Hailed Here

Because the national defense program is expected to make it increasingly difficult to obtain new machinery and repair parts, County Farm Agent Ralph P. McHenry yesterday suggested that Allegany county farmers keep their implements in good running condition, store them under cover, and get repair parts that will be needed next year as soon as possible.

McHenry said that even small amounts of fertilizer left in compartments of corn planters, grain drills or other planting machinery are likely to cause corrosion and harden, clogging the distributing equipment at planting time next spring.

He pointed out that now is a good time to thoroughly clean and wash all fertilizer out of planting equipment and then cover the distributing mechanism with plenty of oil so it will be ready for use when rolled out of storage in the spring.

Any tools, nails, screws or bolts left in seed boxes may be overlooked in the rush of spring planting and damage machinery seriously, he warned.

In the matter of repairs, McHenry reminded farmers that all wooden parts of the hay loader, such as raker bars and conveyor slats, should be checked carefully. Loose ones should be tightened and broken ones replaced. The conveyor ropes or chains also need careful checking to see if they are still strong enough to stand up under another season of wear.

Another suggestion made by the county agent was that farmers aid in the national defense program by collecting all the steel scrap on their farms and selling it to junk dealers.

The metal is needed for defense, McHenry said, but the government is not asking for contributions, as in the aluminum drive. It merely requests that the scrap steel be put into the normal channels of trade, whence it will find its way to where it is needed. In other words, farmers are urged to take the

Delay in School Building Program Related by Kopp

Board Asks OPM Assurance Building Materials Will Be Available

Allegany county's $800,000 school building program will be delayed until such a time that the board of education is assured that certain building materials will be available, it was announced yesterday by Charles M. Kopp, superintendent, following the regular meeting of the board.

Kopp stated that he is awaiting a reply to his letter of last month to T. M. Chandlice, manager, Division of Priorities, Baltimore, in which he stated that the board of education wishes to comply with the requirements of the law and desired to take immediate steps as set forth in the law.

However, Kopp stated that before the board proceeds with the plans and undertakes the erection of school buildings in Lonaconing, Mt. Savage and Ellerslie, the board desired to ascertain whether it will be practicable to go ahead with the program under restrictions which the national emergency has imposed upon certain building materials.

"We have learned from time to time through notices in the press and through other announcements that certain building materials are available only for certain character of building operations, and that priorities are granted on a basis of standards set by federal agencies," Kopp wrote.

The purpose of Kopp's communication was to inquire whether it was within the power of the OPM to give sufficient definite information in reference to the availability of such building materials as ordinarily go into a fire-resistive school building. Kopp added that the school board would not regard it desirable to undertake the building program unless it can be assured that it can be carried on to completion without a long delay, say for a year or two, without securing some of the materials essential to the completion of the project.

Bonds Sold Sept. 1

The county superintendent pointed out that the 1941 General Assembly of Maryland enacted a law making provision for $800,000 for erection of the three buildings, and making it mandatory for the board of education to erect these buildings. The law provides that the school building operations begin immediately after the sale of bonds by the county commissioners which transaction was completed on September 1, 1941.

Since the law providing for the buildings makes it mandatory for the board to erect the buildings immediately, Kopp informed the OPM that the board does not wish to leave any stone unturned to carry out the program in its entirety.

"If we cannot proceed with the building operations as required by law on account of the shortage or unavailability of building materials, we are placed in the critical position of not being able to comply with the law, and I desire to inquire at this time whether there is any federal law or regulation which supercedes state law and thus exempt the board of education from liability on account of its failure to carry out the program," Kopp wrote.

The OPM official was told that if it did not lie within his power to make decisions in the question, raised to advise Kopp with a person or governmental department to confer in order that a definite and final decision might be made as it relates to the local case.

Board Awaits Answer

Kopp stated that the school board had held conferences with five firms of architects relative to plans for the new buildings and that the board members had visited a number of sites in Ellerslie, Mt. Savage and Lonaconing. The outcome of the building program, however, will hinge on the answer received from OPM, it was pointed out.

Suspended Sentence Is Given Jack David
